Many Flock To His Defense— Will Raise Funds To Fight Prosecution

"IN BED HOUR OF CRIME"

Mob Attacks Detective Who Wrung Confession Ac- cusing Hayes

By Associated Press
New Brunswick, N. J.—Thomas F. Hagerty, counsel for Clifford Hayes, 19, held on a charge of murdering the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills announced Wednesday he had proof that Hayes was at home in bed at the hour when Raymond Schneider, who is held as a material witness charges he committed the crime.

Schneider in a signed statement declared Hayes shot the pair on the deserted Phillips farm near here about 1:30 on the morning of Sept. 15, thinking them Nicholas Bahmer and his 15 year old step daughter, Pearl Bahmer. Hagerty said Hayes told him that his statement was confirmed by his entire family, that he returned home at 12:45 and went immediately to bed.

The lawyer declared he was absolutely convinced of Hayes' innocence. That many of the residents of New Brunswick share his belief has been proven by two things in the last 12 hours.

ATTACK DETECTIVE

A crowd of about 50 men early Wednesday morning attacked Frank P. Kirby, Middlesex county detective credited with having obtained the Schneider statement on which Hayes is held, bombarding him with bricks and threatening to tar and feather him. He escaped by locking himself in the Pennsylvania railroad station.

The other evidence of sentiment in favor of Hayes was announcement of plans for a "tag day" Saturday to raise a defense fund for the prisoner. More than 350 persons it was stated, have volunteered to sign tags.

The authorities turned part of their attention to checking up new stories told by Pearl Bahmer. She sought in her last story Wednesday to turn suspicion on her father who, she asserted had more than once threatened to cut her throat. Mrs. Mills' throat was cut and the story told by Schneider of an attack by Hayes fails to explain this fact.

STEPFATHER HELD

The girl said that after she had walked with her father as far as Bueclen park on the night of Sept. 14, and had had the encounter of which she had told earlier, with Schneider, Hayes and Leon Kauffman, her father took her home and told her to go to bed. This she said, was around 10 o'clock. Looking out her window, she declared, she saw her father walking about and muttering to himself.

Bahmer, who was arrested Tuesday night on a statutory charge preferred by his daughter after she had been locked up as an incorrigible, was uncommunicative in his cell Wednesday. Bahmer was given a stiff grilling Wednesday. He maintained he had gone to bed around 10 o'clock after returning with Pearl from the park. He denied he was intoxicated and also denied Pearl's assertion that he had carried a pistol and that he had threatened to cut her throat.

He admitted he had a pistol on the night of the murders, explaining he had borrowed it to use on Schneider whose attentions to Pearl he resented. This pistol, he declared was of 45 calibre, while that used to slay Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills was 32.

The tag day proposal to raise a Hayes "justice fund" was placed before the Lions club, an organization of business men, at a luncheon Wednesday, and was enthusiastically received.

PUT UNDER BONDS OF $250 TO MAINTAIN PEACE

Herman Kamke and son, Arthur Kamke, of Center, who were arraigned in municipal court Tuesday on charges of assault and battery on the person of Edward Tricket and ordered by Judge A. M. Spencer to furnish peace bonds of $250 each. Their probationary term of good behavior was set at six months. Dispute arose on Sept. 25 between the men and Tricket over cattle in a field, when the father and son attacked the other with a club and a knife, it was alleged.

The cases of Henry Wiltz and Gordon Gillespie, charged with possession of illicit liquor, were again adjourned, since material witnesses could not be present.

GRANT HEADS HARVARD ALUMNI

Cambridge, Mass.—Election of Judge Robert Grant of Boston as President of the Harvard Alumni association, was announced by the directors Wednesday. He succeeds William C. Boyden, of Chicago. W. Cameron Forbes, former governor general of the Philippines and G. D. Markham of St. Louis have been chosen vice presidents. Frederick Roy Martin of New York, general manager of the Associated Press, was chosen to complete the executive term of the late Joseph W. Lund as a director.

SCHOOLS MAIN ISSUE TO ALL OREGON VOTERS

Would Eliminate Parochial Institutions—Fight Is Bitter

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1922 by the Post Pub. Co.
Portland, Ore.—Of all the amazing political situations in the United States this year, Oregon presents the most surprising of it not incredible set of circumstances since the days of the far famed "Know Nothing" movement which in the days immediately following the Civil War sought to array Protestants against Catholics and vice versa.

There is actually on the official ballot to be voted on Nov. 7, a proposal which if enacted into law would make a parent or guardian liable to a fine or imprisonment or both if he or she failed to send all children between the ages of 5 and 16 years to the public schools during the regular school term.

Parochial schools of all denominations, Catholic or Protestant, private institutions of all kinds from musical to military schools would be wiped out so far as boys and girls below 16 are concerned if the bill is enacted. Oregon has a system of initiating legislation at the polls and if enough signatures are secured to a petition the proposals are submitted to the voters.

PLAY'S VITAL PART

This, however, is no isolated measure thrust into an election accidentally by the small group of voters. It has been deliberately planned and the issue is playing such a vital part in the state election that for the first time in many years a Democratic nominee for governor has a good chance of being elected in this over-whelmingly Republican state and largely because he has endorsed the bill while his Republican opponent fought this movement in the primaries and won by a scant margin.

Who sponsored the bill? The official pamphlet just issued by the secretary of state of Oregon, containing the views of the supporters and opponents of the measure, frankly gives "as the inspiration for this act" a resolution adopted in May 1920 by the supreme council of the Ancient and Accepted Order of Scottish Rite Masons, southern jurisdiction. There are only two jurisdictions in the United States so the action of the southern body which met in Portland in 1920 is quasi national. The grand lodge of Oregon, A. F. and A. M., and the Imperial Council of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine at endorsed the same resolutions in June 1920. It is printed in the official pamphlet and reads as follows:

"Resolved that we recognize and proclaim our belief in the free and compulsory education of the children of our nation in the public primary schools, supported by public taxation, upon which all children shall attend and be instructed in the English language only without regard to race or creed as the only sure foundation for the perpetuation and preservation of our free institutions, guaranteed by the constitution of the United States and we pledge the efforts of the membership of the order to protect the same."

SHORTAGE OF CARS FELT BY LUMBER COMPANIES

Couderay, Wis.—All lumber companies in this section report the car shortage for lumber loading as being the most acute for ten years past. This is a condition that they have not experienced for a long time. The demand for lumber is as good as ever and the yards are getting well cleaned out. All lumber companies operating in the southern part of Sawyer county will stop extensively this winter and will start early if the men can be secured, but as yet labor is the drawback for them.

PLANES SAVE MANY HOURS IN MAIL SERVICE, HE SAYS

By Associated Press
Detroit—More than 12,000 pounds of first class mail is delivered from 3 to 4 hours earlier each day than would be the case if the postoffice department had no air mail service. Assistant Postmaster General Henderson declared Wednesday in an address at the International Aerial meet here.

admitt they could find. They came back with "Little Bill."

In the convention rooms, "Bill" was turned over to barbers and manicurists and while they performed their magic, new clothes and shoes were substituted for "Bill's" rags.

Two hours later William Hayes stepped into the bright lights of a downtown restaurant, the honored banquet guest of men whose fortunes are in cosmetics and perfume. Hayes handled himself and his knife and fork in a manner which—well—Frank Berling, manager of the restaurant, thought "Bill" would be a "pretty good man to keep around the place."

Elephant Does Not Like Circus Life; Swims Free

By Associated Press
Wilmington, N. C.—The big circus elephant that effected a second escape from her keepers Tuesday night had disappeared Wednesday in the semi-tropical jungle along the Brunswick river where residents say there was little chance of her recapture.

In her second break for liberty the elephant swam the Cape Fear river, and at latest reports to the Wilmington police had penetrated far into the swamps lying between the Cape Fear and the Brunswick. Three keepers went in pursuit but the vegetation is so dense and the danger from alligators so great that their excursion encountered constantly increasing obstacles.

1,000-MARK IS REACHED BY 'Y' IN COLOR RACE

Green Division Cops 3-Day Lead Of Blues—Wind Up Cam- paign Tonight

Workers in the blue division in the Y. M. C. A. color race for members saw their pennant drop to second position on the flagpole Tuesday for the first time since the campaign opened. The green division, a close second on Monday, piled up a lead of 24 for the entire drive and scored into first place.

Figures for Tuesday virtually reached the thousand mark. Those workers who attended the report meeting late in the afternoon handed in 156 applications, representing $1,400.25. This made the total 370 members and $15,762.50. The latter figure is well ahead of the total a year ago at this stage of the race.

CONTINUE GANVASS

A large number of workers again took the field Wednesday morning, hoping to round up the remainder of the renewals and more of the prospects in a final effort. The captains and workers are to meet at 2 o'clock for reports and there will be a rally banquet at 6:15. Should the total then lack what the workers are after a clean up will be made during the evening.

Group membership plans in several manufacturing plants are helping to swell the total. Interlake Pulp and Paper company turned in 91 applications on this basis. Members of teams of industries in the Interfactory Athletic association are also helping.

AMERICA'S EXPORT TRADE TAKES BIG DROP

Washington—America's export trade with Europe suffered a marked decline in August, dropping to $155,000,000 as compared with $206,000,000 in August 1921, but the value of goods imported from Europe jumped upward. Imports from Europe jumped upward from $14,000,000 a year ago, compared with $27,000,000 as compared with $24,000,000 last year.

WORLD'S OLDEST STRIKER GIVES UP TO DEATH ONLY

Burlington, Ia.—Funeral services for Albert M. Parmeter, oldest striker in the world, having been on strike from 1888 until the time of his death, were held Wednesday morning from his home in Burlington and 400 striking shophmen on the Burlington marched in the procession.

Mr. Parmeter was 87 years old and operated a wood burning engine on the Burlington long before a bridge was built across the Mississippi river. He went out on strike with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers on the Burlington in 1888 and never returned to work as the strike was never settled. From that date until the time of his death he drew strike pay amounting to thousands of dollars from the brotherhood.

WOOLWORTH PAYING UP DEBTS IN MILLIONS

New York—Directors of the F. W. Woolworth Co., operating a chain of five and ten cent stores Wednesday declared a regular quarterly dividend of $2 on the common stock and $1.75 on the preferred. They also voted to call for retirement on Feb. 3, 1923, all of the outstanding seven per cent cumulative preferred stock at $125 which will require approximately $11,470,000 all of which will be provided from cash on hand so that no new financing will be required.

ORGANIZE TO ELECT GRAASS TO CONGRESS

Intensive Campaign To Elect Green Bay Jurist Will Start At Once

A powerful organization to carry Outagamie county for Judge Henry Graass, Green Bay, independent candidate for congress, was started here at a meeting of representative men from nearly all sections of the county Tuesday night. Several men from Judge Graass' headquarters in Green Bay assisted in the preliminary organization work. An executive committee, general campaign committee and other committees will be appointed at once so that the campaign can be started without delay.

It is planned to form an organization fully as potent as the one which will back the candidacy of George Schneider, Farmer-Labor Progressive nominee. It is planned to enlist the services of hundreds of workers who will make a systematic campaign which will carry Judge Graass's candidacy into every home in the county.

WOMEN IN CAMPAIGN

Several women attended the organization meeting and gave brief talks in which they assured the men that Outagamie county women would be thoroughly organized in behalf of Judge Graass. It was pointed out that the battle will be hard fought but the Judge cautioned his friends that this campaign must not be directed against any party or any man. The campaigners are to concentrate their efforts on Judge Graass and were instructed not to use methods which reflected on other candidates.

"The Ninth congressional district is entitled to a representative in congress who will truly represent the district, not any class in it," Attorney V. I. Minahan declared in an address in which he outlined the purpose of the meeting. "Judge Graass is a man of high ideals, capable judgment, with experience in the science of government, who will appeal to all careful thinking people as the logical man to send to Washington."

The Judge declared that if he is elected he will go to congress as a representative of every person in the district, without any strings attached. He decried the effort to align class against class in this campaign and urged his friends to conduct the campaign in a manner which will make friends of every person they meet.

Following the addresses the meeting resolved itself into a conference to consider plans for the campaign. Committees will be named as soon as possible and active campaigning will start at once.

MAN NEAR DEATH IN HURLEY BATTLE

Hurley, Wis.—The life of J. C. Woolley, 35, prominent business man of Minneapolis, hangs in the balance Wednesday as a result of a shooting affair Tuesday night alleged to have been caused over an argument over the possession of a small quantity of liquor in front of a saloon. Rosario Sicchio of Hurley, is being held by the officials for the crime.

According to witnesses Woolley, who had been visiting Hurley on a sight-seeing trip, became involved in an argument with Sicchio over the liquor, which suddenly ended when the latter pulled out his gun, sending a bullet through Woolley's brain. Mrs. Woolley is making an apparently losing fight to reach here from Minneapolis to see her husband before his death.

INMATE OF ASYLUM IS AT LARGE IN VICINITY

BADGER YOUTH ESCAPES FROM PONTIAC PRISON

By Associated Press
Chicago—The Chicago police Wednesday were notified of the escape from Pontiac reformatory of Thomas Raymond declared to be a half wit and William Sizkeler whose home was said to be in Madison Wis. Raymond, according to the police twice escaped from the Chester prison for the criminally insane and once previously from the reformatory. Both men were serving ten year sentences for robbery.

CHARGES LAW WOULD ROB U.S. OF GRAIN MART

Federal Commission Quizzes Secretary Of Chicago Board Of Trade

By Associated Press
Chicago—"Hedging and trading in wheat futures is being driven from Chicago to Winnipeg and Liverpool by the threat of the Capper-Tincher law," John R. Mauff, secretary of the Board of Trade told the Federal Trade commission Wednesday.

The supremacy of the Chicago market which now handles more grain than all the rest of the exchanges together is seriously threatened, he said. If the new law is upheld by the Supreme court he added, buyers of cash grain who wish to "hedge" to protect themselves will be forced to go to a British market to deal in futures.

Examiners for the commission questioned the witnesses about the connection of Professor James E. Boyle of Cornell university with the Board of Trade. From the board's minutes the examiners said it appeared that Professor Boyle had been employed by the promotion department of the board in 1919 at a salary of $500 a month to write a book about the grain market. The examiners produced a "Speculation and the Chicago Board of Trade" published in 1919.

Professor Boyle, the secretary said, had presented a letter signed by Woodrow Wilson to him in 1917 and announced that he was to take charge of the board's books as federal investigator. After the period of wartime control the witness said, he understood Professor Boyle had worked for the promotion department but did not know the nature of his employment.

CALL FINANCIERS IN FEDERAL GRAIN QUIZZ

Chicago—Y. Ogden Armour, J. P. Griffin and other leading figures in the world's grain trade were called to testify Wednesday before the federal trade commission in its investigation of trading in futures.

Intricate details of wheat trading are being unfolded to the commission. John Hill, Jr., and Samuel Miner, veteran members of the board of trade asserted that but for the speculators, farmers during heavy movement seasons, would receive bottom prices for their grain.

SENATOR VARE ILL

Philadelphia—The condition of State Senator E. H. Vare, Republican leader of Philadelphia, who is ill at his home in Ambler, Pa., was reported Wednesday to be critical.

Jilted Beauty Will Fight To Prove Slander Is Wrong

Atlanta—"A deep sympathy for a lonely old man, whose children had grown away from him and a companion I craved, rather than love, inspired my engagement to Asa G. Candler, Sr."

Alma Onezima De Bouchel, beautiful New Orleans divorcee, whose engagement to the Atlanta capitalist had been abruptly terminated, made this statement here Wednesday awaiting the arrival of her attorney from the Louisiana city for a conference relative to charges of indiscretion brought against her by Candler.

WILL FIGHT INSULT

"I do not want a single penny of the Candler money," she indignantly asserted, "but they will have to pay dearly for their crime to wreck my reputation with insults."

In a public statement Tuesday Mrs. De Bouchel said Candler had informed her it would be impossible for him to marry her as he had received information that she had invited two men to visit her rooms in a local hotel during the confederate reunion here in 1919.

Dr. Ganfield delivered an address Tuesday night as a sub speaker for the Rev. Frederick F. Shannon, Chicago, who was unable to arrive in time to attend the synod session opening.

More than 100 delegates came to Superior to attend the convention. Reports of the committee were made and plans were discussed for holding the annual synod meetings at Chester, Wis. # TERKS FILTER INTO THRACE Rodos, Thrac—Five thousand Turkish nationalist soldiers in civil- ian attire have filtered into eastern Thrace during the last fortnight through this city and other ports on the sea of Marmora for the purpose of facilitating the Turkish occupation of the province, according to in- formation by the Allied Mission here.

The Kemalists soldiers have mostly come in with groups of refugees making their detection difficult. The local Greeks declare the object of this infiltration is to foment disturbances, organize bands of irregulars and gather information for reprisals against the Greeks.

REFUGEES ARE PROBLEM

Athens—Advices from various parts of Greece, including the islands, indicate a growing seriousness of the refugee problem.

The authorities fear pestilence when the rainy season begins. They estimate Greece will have a million refugees to support when eastern Thrace is evacuated. It would require 1,500,000,000 drachmas yearly to feed this number and also an effective organization which the government does not possess. The Thracian deputies have announced they will appeal to Herbert Hoover for assistance.

Twenty thousand refugees are reported to have moved from the island of Mytilene off the Smyrna coast to Crete and Piraeus.

REACH 1,000-MARK IN 'Y' CAMPAIGN

Green Division Leads In Color
Race—Will Wind Up
Drive Tonight

The Y. M. C. A. for team purposes under the group payment made by the company. These men may pay an additional fee and receive full membership privileges. This plan is being pushed in several plants and stress is being placed on student membership.

GREENS LEAD
The green division, now leading brought in 61 members, bringing its total in the race to 221. Addition of 21 by the blue gave them a total of 242, placing them in second rank.
The orange group is third with 60 added and a total of 240. Reds turned in the biggest number for Tuesday, 61, giving them 221 in all.
Activities at the Y. M. C. A. are expected to be in full swing again on Thursday. All departments except baths and reading rooms were closed during the campaign.
Girls from various churches who took turns in waiting on table at the suppers enabled the association to reduce the campaign expense considerably, as waitresses were hired in past drives.

AIM DEATH BLOW TO PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS

More by all lawful means the organization, extension and development to the highest degree of such schools, and to oppose the efforts of any and all who seek to limit, curtail, hinder, or destroy the public school system
of our land.

MASONS FIGHT ENACTMENT
Do all the masons here subscribe to this doctrine? Not a bit of it.
The writer talked to many masons of such degree who regretted that the resolution had ever been adopted and who are actively fighting the enactment of the law. The newspapers are carrying half advertisements signed by "P. S. Malcom, 33rd degree, Inspector general in Oregon, Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite," urging voters to vote yes.

Were it not for the fact that the Ku Klux Klan here is strong and that its candidate came within 500 votes of winning the Republican nomination for governor in the usual type of anti Catholic fight waged by the Klan, the claims of the supporters of the bill that they are not aiming at Catholics but all denominations would not be so much a subject of controversy. There are more Catholic parochial schools than anywhere and naturally the Catholics cannot be convinced that the measure is aimed elsewhere.

Presbyterian ministers and other clergymen have joined with members of the Catholic Civic Rights association in declaring that what the country needs is harmony, not discord and pointing out that the measure will not accomplish the objects sought even if enacted.

WOULD INCREASE TAXES
What makes the situation so difficult to understand is that the Democratic nominee for governor who is making much headway because of his advocacy of a program of lower taxation, should be endorsing a measure which if enacted would mean new schools and teachers to take care of approximately 12,000 children now in private and denominational schools.

At present writing the bill has a fair chance of passage because on subjects like these so many people "feel instead of think." Before the campaign is over, however, it is safe to predict that every newspaper in Portland will come out against this bill.
That may change the situation considerably and bring about the defeat of the measure. The same kind of bill was submitted to the voters in Michigan in recent years and was beaten nearly 2 to 1. Nothing else counts in Oregon this year except this educational bill and it is inconceivable that it will win.

DOCTORS SOLVE 'MYSTERY DEATHS'

The "mystery poison" that recently caused the death of three out of a Grand Chute farmer and six cows of a farmer in Greenville, was probably nothing more than left-over corn on a harvested corn field, according to an Outagamie veterinarian.

In both cases the cows had been turned into a harvested corn field, it is said. Instances like these develop every year, but the fall of 1920 showed more deaths than usual, the veterinarian said.
Corn left in the field at this time of the year is often affected by a condition that is likely to cause the death of cattle. Thus far chemists have not been able to make a fair laboratory test of the poisonous corn and explain the nature of the poison,
the veterinarian said.

TAR KETTLE TAKES FIRE: NO DAMAGE IS CAUSED

A tar kettle which boiled over while in use at Water and Pearl sts. by a city street crew under John Betz, foreman, gave the fire department a run about 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. The blazing tar produced plenty of smoke but no damage was caused.

An alarm was responded to at Oneida and Atlantic sts. Tuesday evening but there was no fire.

GASOLINE PRICE DROPS
Gasoline took a drop of two cents in Appleton Wednesday morning. The reduction is confined to the 55.60 gravity which is now selling at Standard Oil filling stations at 22.2 cents per gallon. The tank price is now 20.2 cents

Appleton Man Describes Egypt In Magazine Story

Frank Simpich Writes Interesting Article For Geographic Magazine

Fred Simpich, a former Appleton boy who left here 23 years ago, and who since that time has been all over the world and has acted as United States consul in some of the smaller countries of the far east, has an interesting article in the current issue of the National Geographic Magazine entitled, "Along the Nile, Through Egypt and Sudan."

The article is accompanied by 23 illustrations among which are views of the Sphinx, the portal at Karnak built by the third Ptolemy, colossi of Rameses II. at Abu Simbel, caravan passing the ruins of old Memphis, a modern bridge in the lands of the Pharaohs, a sand storm on the banks of the Nile, the unequal yoke in the east showing a camel and buffalo hitched together, a sugar cane camp on the Upper Nile, shelling corn in the Nile valley and a view also of Suez canal.

IN EYES OF WORLD
In speaking of Egypt in a general way, Mr. Simpich said:
"Ever since the plague of frogs since Pharaoh's hosts were swallowed by the sea, since Cleopatra's romance and snakebite, Egypt has been in the eyes of the world."

"Nothing in this strange land is commonplace," Lord Milner has told us, and Napoleon, in his first talk with the governor of St. Helena, declared Egypt to be the most important country in the world."

"For sixty centuries she has been invaded and occupied, ruled and misruled and ruined and rebuilt by assorted enemies of alien race, religion, and speech. Now, under a brand new king of her very own, she begins a new era in her eventful history."

"No land is older in age and civilization than is Egypt; few men are more mixed in race and religion than the modern dwellers along the Nile and no region anywhere offers more puzzling problems or curious contrasts in politics, economics, and national ambitions than does modern Egypt."

OLD CIVILIZATION
"She was civilized and knew the culture of fine arts and sciences when barbaric cave men were yet clabbing their prey and eating it raw on that island where classic Oxford now stands; yet today nine-tenths of her people are illiterate, many are blind from disease, and probably half of the real Egyptians are mere day laborers, for the wealth of Egypt is mostly in alien hands, half of the native farmers, or a million and a half families, own no land at all."

"Still in this 'Evergreen Land of Paradox' the people along the Nile thanks to British aid, are better off than they have been in generations.
The fact that the population doubled in the 42 years of British rule is significant. A wonderfully developed irrigation system and a vast network of communications, both so necessary to agriculture in a rainless land, are here."

VALUES INCREASE
"In the last seven years, land has trebled in value; rich farmers have grown richer; Nile traffic has increased fourfold; into the dusty desert horizon new tracks of steel have penetrated, and away upon the Blue Nile another great dam is being built to impound water for irrigating a yet vaster cotton-growing area."

"Egypt, more than any other land under British protection, waxed fast off the World war. It is said that

COMBINED LOCKS BUYS FIRE TRUCK

Orders Powerful Pumper—Valley Now Well Equipped To Combat Big Fires

Combined Locks relieved itself of the anxiety of inadequate fire protection when its village board, at a meeting Tuesday evening, voted to purchase a triple combination motor fire truck of the American LaFrance type used in Appleton fire department.

The apparatus will include a hose cart, chemical pressure tank, and a motor force pump with a capacity of 600 gallons.

With so much pulpwood stored at and near the village, there was fear that a serious fire might break out.
The apparatus, purchased with the aid of draining water from the river at a tremendous pressure.

The Fox River Valley now is better equipped than ever before for combating serious fires. Kaukauna recently purchased a motor hose cart and pumper and Little Chute also has added to its facilities.

The first rule to follow, if you desire to obtain the best results from your baking is, choose the highest grade flour that you can buy. Flour is probably the most important item used in baking; it is often responsible for the success or failure of whatever you have baked.

"CAN'T-B-BEAT" Flour is the kind of flour that will help to make your baking a success. Every loaf of bread baked from "CAN'T-B-BEAT"

2 STATE BALLOTS AT FALL ELECTION

Sample Ballots Ready For Distribution — Vote On Amendments

Herman J. Kamps, county clerk, has received for distribution throughout the county a supply of sample ballots for the November general elections as required by state law. Bids will be made by printers after forms filled in with the proper candidates for state office have been sent out by the secretary of state Oct. 13.

The election ballot will be a short ballot, as in previous years, and will be 12 by 16½ inches in size and will contain spaces for 16 county and state candidates in each of the five columns. The following classifications will be made: Republican, Democratic, Socialist, Prohibition and Independent.

A separate ballot for the three constitutional amendments to be voted on will be provided. The amendments will provide for a legal verdict in civil cases by a vote of five-sixths of the jury; for the authorization of sheriffs to succeed themselves; and permitting municipalities to go into an additional 5 per cent of indebtedness to purchase public utilities. The voter will check "Yes" or "No" after each question. This ballot will be 4 by 7 inches in size.

DISCUSS CHANGES IN STATE TESTING LAW

Madison, Wis.—The policy to be followed by the state of Wisconsin during the next two years in regard to the indemnification for tubercular cattle condemned and killed will be discussed and probably decided at a meeting of the Wisconsin Livestock Sanitary board in Madison Oct. 16. C. P. Norgard, Wisconsin commissioner of agriculture has announced.

The board will also consider a program of work on "area tests" for the eradication of tuberculosis among stock in counties.

The counties in which the tubercular work is to be concentrated in the next biennium will also be discussed. Norgard is chairman of the board. Other members are Dr. O. E. Eliason, state veterinarian; Prof. E. R. Hastings, bacteriologist of the college of agriculture of the University of Wisconsin; George McKerrrow, Pewaukee; and Dr. L. A. Wright, Columbus.

MILL OWNERS ARE GETTING READY TO MOVE COAL BARGES

Boats Will Be Operated By Shifts Of Men To Speed Up Transportation

While no official announcement has been made it is claimed navigation on Fox river will be resumed next Monday. Locktenders and bridge-tenders from Menasha to Green Bay are busy getting the locks and bridges in order for the rush of coal which is expected during the remainder of the season.

It is said from two or three shifts of men will be employed in transporting coal from Green Bay. Two Oshkosh firms which make a practice of getting most of their coal by water are planning to operate three shifts. It is reported, while Neenah and Appleton companies are planning to operate two.

Practically all the coal that passes through Appleton will go direct to Oshkosh, it is said. The larger shipments will be delivered in Appleton. During the railroad strike at least two of the local mills were compelled to use wood fuel.

OSHKOSH PASTOR IN NEW CHURCH OFFICE

The Rev. Theodore R. Faville, a nephew of Dr. John Faville, former mayor of Appleton, resigned as pastor of First Congregational church of Oshkosh last Sunday to become station superintendent of the Congregational society.

It is the position that was offered to Dr. H. E. Peabody, pastor of First Congregational church of Appleton some months ago, but which he felt necessary to decline. Mr. Faville's announcement came as a complete surprise to his congregation, which he served for five years as the majority of the members had no inkling of what was planned.

The position of state superintendent has been vacant since the resignation of the Rev. L. Curtis Talmage several months ago. Mr. Faville's duties will require his removal to Madison.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes are sold annually at 15c and 30c.

"My God!" Lanyard pronounced in comic despair—"it passes understanding!"

"Now I, in my turn, have the honor to inform you that I have had re-lays of detectives waiting in this hotel day and night, with instructions to guard the doors as soon as you were shown up to my rooms."

"He's lying," Monk insisted putting a restraining hand on Phinuit's arm. Lanyard crossed rapidly to the hall door and flung it open—and fell back a pace with a cry of amazement.

"Madame!" Lanyard gasped—Madame de Montalais—

"She entered with a gladness in her face that was carried out by the impulsive gesture with which she gave him her hands."

"My dear friend!" she cried happily—"I am so glad! And to think we have been guests of the same hotel for three living days and never knew it. I arrived by La Touraine Saturday, but your message, telegraphed back from Combe-Redonde, reached me not five minutes ago. I telephoned the desk, they told me the number of your room and—here I am!"

"But I cannot believe my senses!" With unanimous consent, Jules, Phinuit and Monk uprose and made for the door only to find it blocked by a substantial form.

"Steady, gentle!" he counseled coolly. "Orders are to let everybody in and nobody out."

For a moment they hung in doubt and consternation consulting one another with dismayed stares. Grasping the situation, Eve de Montalais turned to the quarter eyes that glimmered in a face otherwise quite composed.

"But how surprising!" she declared. "Madame la Comtesse de Lorraine—Monsieur Monk—Mr. Phinuit—how delightful to see you all again!"

The civility met with inadequate appreciation. "Nothing could be more opportune," Lanyard declared, "for it is to this lady, Madame de Montalais, and to these gentlemen that you owe the recovery of your jewels."

"But how can I thank them?"

"Well," said Lanyard, "if you ask me, I believe they would be most grateful to be permitted to leave and keep their numerous and pressing appointments elsewhere."

"I am entirely of your mind, monsieur."

Lanyard nodded to the man in the doorway—"All right, Mr. Murray"—and he stood indifferently aside.

In silence the three men moved to the door and out. Phinuit with a brazen swagger, Jules without emotion visible, Monk with eyebrows adroop and flapping.

But Lanyard interposed when Liane Deleorme would have followed.

"A moment, Liane, if you will be so good."

She paused, regarding him with a somber and inscrutable face while he produced from his coat pocket a fat envelope without endorsement.

"This is yours."

The woman murmured blankly: "Mine?"

He said in a guarded voice: "Papers I found in the safe in your library, that night. You are unwise to keep such papers, Liane. Goodbye!"

Lifting the flap, the woman half withdrew the envelope, recognized it as a glad, and crushed it in a convulsive grasp. For an instant she seemed about to speak, then bowed her head in dumb acknowledgement, and left the room.

Lanyard nodded to Mr. Murray, who amiably closed the door, keeping him self on the outside of it.

Eve de Montalais was eyeing him with an indulgent and amused glance.

"That woman loves you, monsieur," she stated quietly.

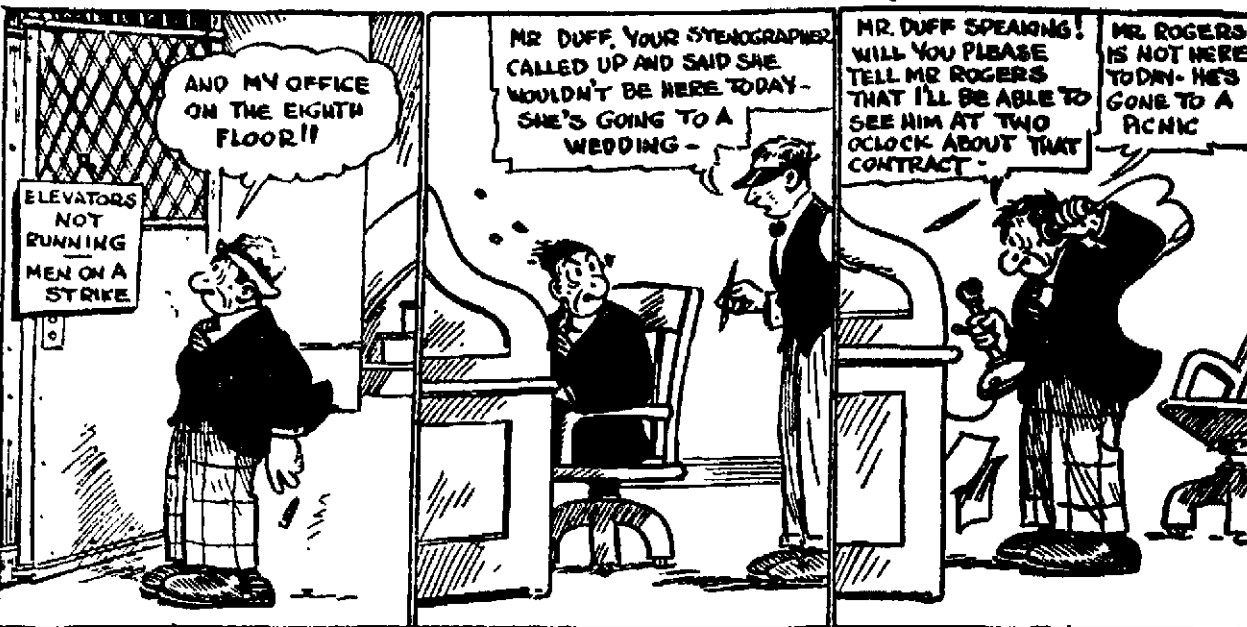

He succeeded admirably in looking as if the thought was strange to him.

"One is sure madame must be mis-taken."

"Ah, but I am not!" said Eve de Montalais. "Who should know better the signs that tell of woman's love for you, my dear?"

Wilson Finds Enjoyment In Vaudeville Comedy

BY ROBERT TALLEY

Washington.—When Woodrow Wilson goes to the theater — vaudeville show—

He doesn't occupy a box. He sits with the crowd—in the last row back and on the extreme left aisle.

Mrs. Wilson, her mother, her sister, his secretary (Mrs. Wilson's brother, John Randolph Rollins) and a secret service man accompany him.

His auto stops in the alley alongside the theater, two attendants assist him through a side door to his seat which is only a few feet away.

The audience stands faces him and applauds as he comes in, hobbling heavily on his cane, he smiles and bows in acknowledgment.

At Keith's vaudeville theater the other night, I sat less than three feet from the ex-president and watched him enjoy the show. He was as happy as a kid at his first circus.

A female impersonator fooled him until he snatched off his wig at the end of his act.

With amused interest and frequently soft chuckles he followed the songs and stories of a dapper young comedian.

Like jazz? Seems to be crazy about it. Patted his foot softly in keeping time with a jazz band that was part of a musical revue.

The grotesque doll dance of Adelaide and Hughes, old-time vaudeville favorites seemed to win his particular admiration. He watched their antics through opera glasses, handed to him by Mrs. Wilson.

But what do you suppose tickled him most?

One of those animated cartoons in the movies, wherein a cat with highly flexible eyebrows and a long, nervous tail twitches his whiskers and stretches his neck like it was made of rubber.

"Ho, ho, ho!" came Wilson's soft, deep-throated chuckles as the feline got chased by polar bears and was threatened with sudden and terrible extinction in a dozen different ways.

This gag by Johnny Burke, soldier-comedian, got a good laugh from the man whom historians will class with Washington and Lincoln.

"I was diggin' a trench," related Johnny, "when along comes a captain and says 'Whadda you throwin' all that dirt out here on the ground for?'—'Cause I ain't got no where else to throw it.' I says back to him—Then

STOUT WOMEN ARE REAL WINNERS IN BUSINESS WORLD

Their Very Size Commands Attention, New York Woman Says

By Margaret Roho
New York—Oh lady of the triple chin and 48 inch waist, no more you'll need to roll and pant to suit the public taste. No more you'll need to diet and eschew all fattening fare. Of luscious pies and chocolate cake no more you need beware.

For Mrs. Sears, Elizabeth, the New York president of Women's League, professional and business, has just sent the dictum forth that stout and fat and portly women are much better than the skinny and the slender ones, by far, when it comes right down to business and a question of success. The biggest girl's the biggest hit in business, so says "Bess".

The reason is, although more pounds she has, also more poise, personality and charm that never cloy are hers and what is best of all a cheerful disposition is always owned by "Fatty" and it seems her constant mission to lighten little business cares and brighten business fret, then too her very presence, so substantial, makes folks get the very good impression that her firm's substantial too. She's good broad understanding (you can tell that by her shoe).

THEY LISTEN TO HER
The moment that she enters any office she'll command by reason of impressive bulk on each and every hand immediately attention. She'll impress by very size and inspire the greatest confidence in even the wary guys.

Whereas the little slender wisps of femininity are not a bit impressive in a business way, you see. Before they put their sales across, their personality they've got to out across and overcome. You'll all agree, their slight slim insignificance that's very apt to be a handicap when overshadowed by some portly she.

There's just one thing, says Mrs. Sears, against the woman plumb and that's the way she's had to dress. It made her look a chump. All clothes for small and willowy type females were designed with nary thought for hallowy and bulky belles in mind.

AND THE RESULT—
So consequently plumb 'uns looked grotesque in styles made that simply emphasized their bulk and didn't help, but to minimize their lumps with lines becoming and de rigueur that used discretion to restrain a little too much figure.

But now that blight for females fat's removed. Their future's bright. The latest fashion shows all show some fashions that are right to perfect forty eights designed to make the stoutest swaggar even though neath many surplus pounds of flesh she's doomed to slacker.

Flip, hip, hurry, let all hips sway let joy be untroubled and also wais and also chins for in these styles designed to set her bulky beauty off, the fat girl, not the lean by Mrs. Sears is now proclaimed the perfect business queen.

FEDERAL BODY QUIZZES
CHICAGO GRAIN BROKERS
By Associated Press
Chicago — A number of Chicago's leading grain brokers were ordered to appear Tuesday before the Federal Trade commission which opened its inquiry here into future trading in wheat.

Findings of the commission which began its hearings in Washington last week will be made in a report to the United States senate.

Among board of trade members subpoenaed were Arthur Cutton, J. P. Griffen, L. I. Gates, John Hill, Jr., and Samuel Mincer.

NORWAY CONFISCATES
BRITISH RUM CARRIERS
Christiania — The Norwegian government, under laws recently enacted, may now seize vessels of less than 100 tons found within the common territorial frontier carrying liquor in excess of the actual requirements of those on board.

Application was made a short time ago in the case of the motor cutter "Lisbeth," of Cuxhaven, England. This boat was stopped off Risor by the custom authorities and found to have over 300 quarts of liquor on board. The captain was fined, and the cutter and her cargo of spirits confiscated.

HEADRESSES
Many very lovely headresses for winter have a strong oriental influence, being made very much like turbans of richly brocaded materials, but entirely lacking as to crown. Earplugs, which grow longer hourly, are a necessary accessory to complete the picture.

Adventures Of The Twins

Frog Gets Revenge
Phil frog had a busy time of it. He was the best-natured person you'd ever meet and yet he had more enemies than a fish has scales.

Oscar Owl made Phil jump a yard every time he went "Whoo!" Marty Mink gave Phil a cold chill every time his shadow fell on the still waters of Lily Pond.

And Cob Coon and Phil couldn't live in the same house. But the one Phil dreaded most was Dave Duck.

Oscar and Marty and Cob could only make Phil's life miserable on dry land (although Marty was a pretty good swimmer), but Dave Duck could chase him on land and water and even under the water.

Phil hid under his lily-pod house and watched Dave's yellow feet pushing about on top of the water.

Fish, push, piddle, piddle! went Dave's feet overhead until Phil could stand the sight of them no longer. One could never tell when both feet were going to kick up into the air, and Dave's yellow bill suddenly take their place under the water.

One day Phil had an idea. He hopped in among the slugs and weeds where Poky Pickrel lived and whispered something into Poky's ear.

"Will you?" he asked anxiously. "Sure!" said Poky obligingly.

By and by Dave came along, somersaulting and snapping up things and gobbling them down again. He didn't see Poky right under him.

Suddenly something else snapped. It was Poky Pickrel's jaws this time and they snapped on Dave Duck's foot.

Dave honked and quacked and made a terrible racket. At last he got away, but he left a bit of his yellow foot in Poky's sharp teeth.

He had to go to Dr. Snuffles' house right away and get it patched up. He ate with an awful bill—not the one he ate with either.

TESTED RECIPE

APPLE FLAN

By Bertha E. Shapleigh

The following is a good recipe for using apples, but where fruit may be used. When canned fruit is used the paste is always baked first and then the fruit is put in and a glaze is made with the sirup and poured over the fruit.

Line a slightly buttered deep pie plate with a good pie paste. Press edges well onto edge of plate and trim evenly.

Pare, core and cut in eighths eight well flavored apples. Cover the bottom of the lined pie plate with any kind of marmalade.

Thinly slice the apples over this and sprinkle with one-half cup sugar mixed with one teaspoon cinnamon.

Bake in oven 30 minutes. Remove and pour over the apples two table spoons melted currant jelly.

ANOTHER METHOD
Line the pie plate as before with the paste. Cut apples in eighths and cook half of them in a sirup made with one cup of sugar and one fourth cup water, boiled one minute.

Add two drops of vanilla extract. Cook the remaining half of apples in cranberry juice sweetened to taste. The cranberries will give a beautiful red color to the apples, as well as a good flavor.

Fill the plate which is lined with paste with paper and bake. Remove paper and spread the paste with marmalade.

Then arrange the pieces of apple in circles, alternating red and white. Boil the cranberry juice and sugar until it will jelly and pour over the apples.

DRAPERIES
Many smart headed frocks look perfectly plain from the front but have elaborate draperies in the back which may serve as wingsleeve draperies, elaborate sash effects or loose panels.

WOULD TABOO LONG SKIRT
TEN INCHES from the ground—no longer, no shorter! That's the slogan of the newly organized "No Longer Skirt Club" of Flint, Mich. Flint women are behind a movement to pooh, pooh the rules and regulations set down by Paris designers.

And they intend to try and get other cities lined up in their battle to taboo the long skirt. Picture shows (left to right) Mrs. Eva Beck, president of the club, Miss Lulu Vernon, secretary, and Miss Delene Wheeler, treasurer.

Household Hints

MONKEY FUR
Monkey fur is effectively combined with brocaded silk, by Paris designers. White monkey fur makes striking trimming for black satin gowns and coats.

MILLINERY
Close turbans, formed entirely of velvet foliage in soft greens and browns, are shown for winter. As the season advances and more winter millinery is shown the smaller hat is getting more attention.

BUTTERFLY BOWS
Huge butterfly bows of taffeta, moire and velvet are used on frocks for young girls. Sometimes they have long sash ends that reach to the hem of the frock.

MONOGRAMS
Monograms are a feature on sports blouses and dresses. They started small and comparatively inconspicuous but now they are attaining quite large proportions and are frequently made the whole decoration.

MILLINERY
Very few flowers are noticed on the early winter hats, but much metal embroidery, ribbon and all types of feathers are seen.

RIBBON BOWS
Ribbon bows are in great favor, in all sizes. Very small ones decorate a blouse on the middie plan and hold in the fullness about the hips. Three, arranged horizontally, make a Windsor tie quite unnecessary.

trriage a la mode woman's page
One reason why early marriages were not the rule in Prussia and Poland in the old days was because a woman had to be such an expert housekeeper before she was considered eligible for matrimony.

Besides a thorough knowledge of cooking she was supposed to have wrought cloth enough to make garments for every person at the wedding. Brides of 30 and 40 were the rule.

By Associated Press
Muskegon, Mich. — Bernard Midauch, 13, is being held by local authorities who are investigating the recent theft of $8,000 in money and jewelry and checks from a home in Grand Haven, Mich.

The lad was living in style in a local hotel when arrested, according to the police. In his room the police say they found a quantity of jewelry and expensive clothing.

PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD MEETS IN SUPERIOR
By Associated Press
Superior—About 100 delegates have arrived in Superior to attend the first session of the Wisconsin Synod of the Presbyterian church which opens Tuesday afternoon with the Rev. Ernest W. Wright of Appleton, moderator presiding. Dr. W. A. Ganfield of Waukesha, president of Carroll college, is mentioned as a candidate for moderator to succeed Mr. Wright. The Synod will be in session three days.

Cinderella Sally
Chapter 6 — Adventure Ahead
By Zoe Beckley

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Finding she can no longer stand the insults that are her lot as a servant in the home of a newly rich mistress.

SALLY, an orphan girl, sets out for the city where she secures work as assistant in a soda fountain. With her she carries memories of HARRY STANLEY, son of her former mistress and the only person who ever has treated her kindly.

GO ON WITH THE STORY
Sally began as second assistant "soda jerker" at $7 a week. She roomed with one of the other store girls and had meals in the Morosos' kitchen.

She worked from 8 till 6, and every third night till 10. The evening she wasn't in the store she often walked out with Anna, her roommate, or read in the public library. Sometimes she saved a dollar or two, with instinctive prudence.

In three months she was first assistant and got $9. She was quick and intelligent at her work, attractive in her pink and blue gingham shop dresses and popular with the customers.

"Keep it up, Sally, you're all right!" said the round little Italian who kept the store. "Some time Anna get married and you walk into her shoes."

Sally glanced at the generous shoes she was promised, then at her own neat feet. She looked her gratitude at Moroso's offer, but smiled and shook her head.

"Thanks, Mr. Moroso, but I want to move on—to Chicago, or maybe New York even."

Moroso's fat face fell in disapproval. "Whadyer think nice girl alone do in Chicago?" he demanded.

"Tend soda fountains for one thing. But there's other things."

"Yeah. And there's men only too glad give pretty girl like you chance at other things, like you say."

Sally smiled sulkily at the "pretty girl" and sardonically at the oft-heard warning against the big city for the pretty girl.

"That's good news!" she said severely. "A girl needn't accept things, but there's nothing to prevent her from looking over her chances. A chance means more than just risk, doesn't it, Mr. Moroso?"

He shook his head. "You play wit' fire, lil' girl!" Sally looked serious.

"But you can do a with fire," she said determinedly, "if you handle it right."

She seemed to sum up Sally's attitude toward large things and small—Who can tell which is which in the long run? Anyhow, she was walking on Main street one Saturday evening in a clean gingham frock when Martin, the town photographer, standing before his studio, stopped her.

"Come in," said Martin. "You look pretty as a picture. Do you mind if I take one of you?" He looked at her appraisingly.

Sally glanced alertly at him. Was he appraising her—or only her looks? "I haven't any money for photo graphs, Mr. Martin."

"Oh, it's on the house. I've a reason. And who knows, it may make your fame and fortune—and mine!" Sally smiled at such foolishness.

But the photographer would surely present her with a print or two, which would be nice, and after a moment's hesitation, she followed him into the studio.

Instant Quaker Oats

Cooks to perfection in 3 to 5 minutes

Now Quaker Oats hold supreme place, the world over, in two important ways.

They are the finest-flavored oats in existence. They are flaked from queen grains only—just the rich, plump, flavory oats. We get but ten pounds of such flakes from a bushel.

For many a year, oat lovers the world over have sent for Quaker Oats because of that matchless flavor. Those who know it will not go without it.

Now that same flavor, that same quality, come in an Instant style.

Instant Quaker Oats cooks in 3 to 5 minutes, and it cooks to perfection. It is by far the quickest-cooking oats in the world.

In Instant style the oats are cut before flaking. They are rolled very thin and are partly cooked. So the flakes are smaller and thinner—that is all. And those small, thin flakes cook quickly.

Get Quaker Oats always, in fairness to yourself. This is the food of foods—the greatest food that grows. You want the dish delightful.

But tell your grocer which style you want, the Instant or the regular. He has both, and the price is the same for either.

FLYING WORK SHOPS WILL ACCOMPANY PLANES

London—There is now being built for the air ministry the first flying stores and workshop ever constructed in this country. The machine has a large fuselage and is to be used to carry spare parts with operating air fleets. This will avoid the necessity of an airplane having to return to headquarters to obtain the requisite spare parts for repairs when some slight trouble has developed, or as an alternative, having to make a forced landing.

If a pilot, when flying on maneuvers, develops "trouble" of some sort, he will signal to the flying workshop which will carry spare parts of the type that are being used by the unit. The two machines will then alight in some suitable place where the necessary work can be done.

As soon as the first flying workshop is completed and satisfactorily tested, a number of similar craft will be built.

MATHILDE HATS are especially designed to suit the needs of the slender figure. Mathilde adapts the most favored Parisian models to this purpose—and produces exquisite little hats of unusual line, fabric and color. Such clever and becoming things as these usually cost a great deal more than the average. Mathilde hats are exclusive hats at the average price. $10., $11., $12. and $13.50.

Tangerine velvet, of fine quality, makes the Mathilde hat at the right. The bow is of navy moire ribbon. A gay little hat for Fall and Winter days.

The love of bright colors for winter is found in a delightful turban of henna velvet—beautifully tucked. Imagine it with a fur coat!

The Blue is a favored shade of the season that Mathilde has employed in two styles. One hat with a turned up brim is of fine velvet—trimmed with a large silver quill.

A clever little hat with turned-up brim that extends at either side, is of blue and putty velvet.

$250 BOND WILL PROTECT TEACHER AGAINST LOSSES

Court Orders School Board To Provide Guarantee For Miss Heenan

Judge A. M. Spencer of the municipal court Wednesday directed the plaintiff in the case of the School Board District No. 9 of the towns of Grand Chute and Ellington against Miss Phoebe Heenan, school teacher, to furnish bonds to Miss Heenan in the sum of $250. This amount is to cover damages the defendant may sustain while she is temporarily unemployed.

An injunction had been secured by Michael McCarthy, who claims to be the director of the school board, restraining Miss Heenan from teaching in that school on the grounds that another teacher, Miss Audrey Bailey, had been engaged by the board. Both teachers claim to have contracts. Miss Heenan's contract had been made with Fred Hartmann, director, and George Plaman, clerk, it is maintained by Miss Heenan. Attorney John Morgan, representing Miss Heenan in the case, sought to have the injunction dissolved. An early settlement is expected in the matter.

NICOLET FOLLOWED WATERWAY ROUTE

Adventurous Frenchman First White Man To Sail On Inland Seas

Jean Nicolet, the adventurous Norman, who discovered Wisconsin and founded what is now the city of Green Bay in 1634, made the trip from Quebec to Green Bay over the projected Great Lakes Waterway route.

Just 14 years after the Pilgrims landed in Plymouth, Nicolet with seven Huron Indian savages, started the treacherous trip in canoes, from the Canadian city, came down the St. Lawrence river, crossed Lakes Ontario and Erie, followed the coast line of Lake Huron until they reached Lake Michigan which they crossed and arrived at Red Banks on the shore of Green Bay in 1634. He made the 1,000 mile trip as an emissary of Governor Champlain of New France, which is now Canada, after spending approximately 10 years, isolated from the rest of the world in Indian camps, fitting himself for the expedition.

Nicolet's companions were sent into the camps of the Winnebago's with the announcement that the "Manitoulinion" or a "wonderful man" was coming. As he stepped ashore he fired a musket which sent women and children running into their tents fearing the "God of Thunder." To him goes the glory of being the first white man to sail that section which is now destined to become the greatest waterway ever attempted.

Red Banks, where Nicolet and his helpers landed, is a clay bluff standing about 80 feet above the water of Green Bay. A huge boulder to which a bronze tablet is attached commemorates its discovery.

This section is now a conventional summer resort lined with private cottages. Archaeologists still find relics believed to have belonged to the Winnebago and Pottawamie Indian tribes which once inhabited this region.

THE PEOPLE'S AID

Attention is again directed to The People's Aid column, a department that has been established by the Post-Crescent in the interest of city improvement. It aims to aid the people in bringing their complaints, suggestions and inquiries to the city authorities for action.

Readers of the Post-Crescent who have already made use of this agency know that the letters to this column have brought results. One can point to a number of improvements that have been made, nuisances that have been removed and other irregularities that have been corrected through the People's Aid.

Any person in Appleton that has complaint or suggestion to make relative to street conditions, park upkeep, police vigilance, city health and sanitation, waterworks, street lighting, sewers, fire department, gas, electric and trolley service, are invited to tell The People's Aid about it. Names and addresses should be signed to all communications, although initials only will be used for publication. Heads of various city departments have consented to cooperate with The People's Aid; hence every correspondent may know that his communication, if pertinent, will be welcome. ## ATHLETE AT 'U' MUST BE SUPERMAN

Recent Discussion Barr Shows Gauntlet He Must Go Through

Madison—The long anxiety of the football coaches and the student body at the University of Wisconsin over the question of the eligibility of "Shorty" Barr, which was definitely settled last week, brought out the fact that to represent the university on one of her athletic teams, a student must be almost a super-being, perfect in mind and body.

Before a student is eligible to participate in a conference game, he must have attended the university one year, have a general average of at least 77 in the full course of the department in which he is entered, and prove by actual demonstration in practice, that he is the best man in school for that particular position.

LONG PRACTICE DAILY

The athletes are required to practice long hours daily. They are frequently given instructions by the coaches in the evening at the gymnasium, but the next day they must be prepared to recite in class with the other students who have had the afternoon and evening to study while the athlete was on the athletic field. Speed and strength are important factors in athletics. They are in fact a necessity for a successful football team, but quick thinking is even more important. A student at Wisconsin who does not think as well as act quickly cannot make good on the athletic field. He must be able to get his lessons in less time than the average student, make good grades in all his classes, keep himself in perfect physical condition, which means he must have plenty of sleep, and then compete with dozens of others for his place on the athletic field.

GOES TO SUMMER SCHOOL

To remove the conditions which kept him from the varsity team last year, "Shorty" Barr attended summer school at the university of Michigan this year to get the work in law which he could not get at Wisconsin in the summer. He successfully passed his examinations and the announcement last week that he was again eligible for the football team was the best news from an athletic point of view given out at Wisconsin this fall.

C. OF C. TO HEAR T. B. MILK TALKS

Next Forum Meeting Will Deal With Subject Of Protection To Milk User

Need of protection of the public against milk from tubercular cows will be the subject to be taken up at the next forum meeting of the chamber of commerce, to be held Nov. 13.

Two federal officials engaged in eradication of the disease among cattle have promised to attend and give talks if their engagements at that time permit. They are Dr. J. S. Healy, Madison, in charge of tuberculosis eradication for the United States bureau of animal husbandry, and Dr. P. J. Cass, Oshkosh, United States veterinary inspector.

It is the hope of Secretary Hugh G. Corbett to have one or two of the leading dairymen of the county at the meeting to present their side of this question. The motion picture film, "Out of the Shadows," which has attracted widespread comment in dealing with this subject, is to be shown as one feature of the gathering.

C. OF C. MAILED VOTE FAVORING PAR CHECKS

Appleton Chamber of Commerce has cast a unanimous vote in favor of making par remittance in payment of checks among banks of the country. Banks in referendum No. 39 of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States returned by members have been mailed to the Washington office.

There was a large vote on this question, and every ballot was in favor of remittance at par. The national chamber took up the matter in an attempt to gain uniformity in banking all over the country. Some banks remit to federal reserve banks and to correspondent banks at the par value of the remittances, but others deduct a fractional charge to pay cost of remitting.

TELL EQUITY MEN OF HOG ECONOMY

Feeding Tests At Roy Schmit Farm Will Be Explained At Greenville Meeting

Hog feeding at low cost through application of new common-sense methods will be explained to Equity members attending the entertainment and community program at Pegal Hall, Greenville, at 8 o'clock Friday evening. The procedure will be explained by L. H. McKay, hog specialist of the college of agriculture, Madison, using results achieved at the Roy Schmit farm, near Greenville.

Mr. McKay arranged with Mr. Schmit for the feed tests. The hogs were weighed before and after the experiment and an accurate daily record of feed was kept. Cost of producing each 100 pounds of gain was determined from the records.

Mr. McKay and Mr. Schmit will talk on the methods used and will answer questions. Four reels of motion pictures, one a comedy, have been obtained for the meeting as an entertainment feature by Paul O. Nyhus, farm agent of the First National bank.

GREEN BAY SEEKS APPLETON TRADE

The civic committee of the Green Bay Association of Commerce is endeavoring to have established a new highway leading from Clintonville through Nichols to connect with highway 16 at the Brown-co. and Outagamie-co. line.

Clintonville Association of Commerce and A. L. Nichols, founder of Nichols, are cooperating with the Green Bay organization in the matter. The new highway would shorten the distance from Clintonville to Green Bay from 65 to 40 miles and would open up a new trade territory for the Bay city. It is hoped thereby to obtain some of the trade that now goes to Appleton and Oshkosh.

FIRE PREVENTION

Fire loss, like taxation, falls on everybody. That no one but property owners and insurance companies lose by fires is as much a mistake as that only property owners suffer from taxation. Capital that replaces fire losses would be used in other ways for general benefit if not used to restore what has been burned.

Fire prevention is one of the best worthwhiles we have. It should be everybody's business. The grand yearly fire loss in the United States is $485,000,000. That, at least, was the record in 1921. What the showing will be this year depends on you.

You can read this editorial in a couple of minutes. By the time you reach the last line property worth approximately $2,000 will have been destroyed by fire somewhere in the United States. Minute after minute, day after day, on this average, this appalling pace keeps up.

In the last half century the population of the United States has trebled, but not so the fire loss. Since 1870 the yearly fire wastage in this country has increased approximately eight-fold.

In every phase of our economic life the effect of this wastage is reflected. It enters into the cost of every commodity we use. It increases the cost of living a half billion dollars annually. It is a tax of nearly five dollars per head on every man, woman and child in the United States per year.

During the last few years in which house construction has been limited, we have burned down approximately one house for every five erected.

Fire figures also in unemployment. The burning of our industrial plants—and not a day passes without at least one such fire somewhere—throws men out of work at a time when the desperate need, in speeding up our recovery from the late war, is to provide a job for every man—not to burn down the already inadequate sources of livelihood.

This week is Fire Prevention week in Wisconsin. Ninety per cent of all fires are preventable, for they are due to carelessness.

Take a look in your basement, your attic, that closet. Clear out the rubbish—the old stuff stored away because "maybe some day we'll find a use for it." Many fires about the house are born in trash piles.

A minute's thought now may save the accumulation of a life time from the ravages of fire. After all, it's chiefly a matter of protecting your own dwelling and those whose presence there makes it home. Don't wait for the fire department patrol to come around and give advice that common sense must suggest to yourself.

THE TURK TRIUMPHANT

Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Turkish nationalist commander, may be arousing the anger of the entire Christian world by his demands made of the allies in Constantinople, but nobody need be much surprised if they are granted. Kemal has the reason of victory on his side. He and his Turks have been fighting to get back as much as possible of the old Turkey which was wrested from them by war. They have won.

The allies have made no foolish pretense of quoting the treaty of Sevres, or any other treaty, to this very capable conqueror. They know that in the face of such a brute fact as Turkey's revival, with France and Russia behind her, the citing of deal-letter pacts forced upon her when she could not stand up for herself is a waste of time. Kemal has created his own situation.

If so happens that no European nation very greatly desires to fight any one at this time. It is said England's small army on the spot could not prevent capture of Constantinople if the Turks went after it. And England—however much her commercial interests may desire to keep this key position out of Moslem hands—is in no mood to conduct a war to the finish with Kemal.

The Turks are a cruel and not a particularly intelligent nation. Their crimes, whatever the aggravation, have been inexcusable. They have few factories or schools that outsiders have not established for them, and from the standpoint of prosperity and enlightenment the return to them of spheres of influence held by more civilized and capable nations is regrettable. Yet it is not customary, when admitting territorial sovereignty, to ask into the character of the rulers. If they have a government on the spot and the power and courage to uphold it, and a population generally willing to be subjected, the rest of the world has not been disposed to question further. That is certainly the case in the lands Turkey has recovered, and in at least part of the lands whose return she is now demanding.

The Turks are no longer weak—that is the point that changes the entire situation in the Near East. Policies that international law justified against a weak and incompetent nation are not practical when that nation, though incompetent as ever, becomes strong. It sounds like "might makes right," but it seems to be the meat of the matter with regard to Turkey.

PLENTIFUL AND DEAR

The United States geological survey has ninety hard-working geologists at work all the time surveying the underground of America. They know what is down below hundreds of thousands of square miles of surface and they are adding to that knowledge for the benefit of the whole public by thousands of square miles every year.

For example, they know that the United States has 7,000 times as much coal still in the ground under our feet as was used during the entire year 1921. Everybody knows that hundreds of millions of tons were used in that year, and every year, but, at the rate it was consumed in 1921, we have enough left to last us 7,000 years!

There is no necessity more plentiful in this country than coal and yet we pay $10 to $20 a ton for it! Evidently there is something vitally wrong in our method of handling this great national asset.

EARTH'S CORNERS

Often you speak of "the four corners of the earth." Where are they? The postal department figures it out. Taking a Mercator's projection map it finds Chicago is the center.

The four extreme corners are Nome, Alaska; Christchurch, New Zealand; Bergen, Norway, and Cape Town, Africa.

A letter takes 13 days to reach Nome from Chicago, Christchurch 27 days, Cape Town 25 and Bergen 12. Communication on this little earth of ours has made great strides, but it's still in short trousers and not uniformly developed.

BACK TO EARTH

New York municipal statistics show the stork is visiting there again with his old-time frequency. The metropolis is doubtless beginning to emerge from its war period of after-the-war hysteria, and paying more attention to homes and babies, and other things that have made this a great nation, and kept the race alive.

We are told that Broadway's night life is becoming drab and dreary. The attendance at the cabaret dancing because bad whiskey has ruined or hurt the health of the prize has shrunk the purses of others. The flapper is contenting herself without compulsion and is likely soon to be the girl we used to know. Bobbed hair is even "doctored" now to make it appear long.

It is well that New York has ceased to be a mere flag station for the stork. For there is always danger of Manhattan Island getting the fumes of the rest of the country, so long as so many of us are tools enough to imitate everything done by the big and the wealthy.—NEW ORLEANS ITEM.

HIS PLACE IN THE SUN

In most colleges by now the freshman has earned his right to appear in public without apology. The flag rush—or whatever the particular contest between fresh and sophomores may be called—has been held. The required area of cuticle has been sacrificed to higher education, the needful number of teeth broken out and fractures encountered, the usual volume of wearing apparel torn to shreds. "Was a famous victory," no matter which class won and regardless of the fact that no one knows what all the toil and tumult was about.

It is a strenuous life—this seeking of an education. One needs to be stout of heart and hickory-limbed to qualify. If one be hypercritical and hypocritical, it is not necessary that a necessary relationship exist between a college education and a flag rush he should be put down as one who would question the fixed and repeatable. The flag rush is like the constitution. It has been, and is to be.

Life is a struggle and perhaps, in spite of what unsophisticated critics may say, a freshman gets as valuable training in a flag rush as he does in memorizing a Latin conjugation. The flag rush symbolizes life.—CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER.

A paragrapher thinks it would be awful if girls didn't have any more sense than we think they have. And wouldn't it be wonderful if men had as much sense as they think they have?—ARKANSAS GAZETTE.

PUT AWAY THE DRAPE

Housekeepers are hard to reform. They still clean house in spite of all I have said about the unhygienic habit. They still seek some miraculous disinfectant which will chase germs out of the house, for it is a rare housekeeper who isn't more or less convinced that germs "lurk" here and there as a matter of microbes habit or pure perversity.

Next to fresh air, which has been pretty thoroughly sold to a store of housekeepers, the most important thing to do is to get rid of the stale air that doesn't stir too much, sunlight is perhaps the most potent health preserver one can keep in the house for all occasions. Sunlight gets in its best licks in the good old summer time when folks venture out of doors and housekeepers take down the drapes and suchlike obstructions which ordinarily cover windows. The air is no fresher or purer in summer than it is in winter.

We must credit sunlight with the improvement in health which most people experience in summer. In the winter time there isn't so much sunlight available. In the winter time a sensible housekeeper would naturally arrange her window trimmings to admit more sunlight than the summer window trimmings admitted. But how rare is the sensible housekeeper! Almost universally the windows are covered with all the drapes the house affords in winter, and within all is dark and gloomy.

This curious custom of excluding sunlight from the house when it is most essential for the health and happiness of occupants is probably rather a matter of habit with housekeepers than mere willfulness. It started away back when it was the general custom to pile old leaves or straw or manure around the foundation of the house in the fall and board up all windows and doors except the lee door, in order to keep warm through the winter. All prudent housekeepers took such measures in the old days; and no housekeeper wishes to be considered negligent. So it is the proper custom to put on the windows a sort of red flannel underwear when preparing for winter.

The housekeeper who used to keep the window curtains drawn and the shades down to prevent fading of the green roses in the carpet and the red plush in the parlor couch has, of course long since passed to her reward, although one correspondent assures me he has found a living specimen in Manhattan, Minn.

By way of excuse for shutting sunlight out of the house some housekeepers maintain that the summer house is cooler in the heat of the summer.

This may be true, but it does not tell the whole story. The usual custom for it to be true then the summer and autumn and other trimmings should be kept up in summer and taken down when winter comes. Coolness is probably better assured by open windows without any obstruction to the faint breeze that shade or curtains would discourage. The place for shade is outside of the house, in the shape of foliage or awnings.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Late Night Lunch

What may one eat before going to bed, and also what should one eat at the time?—(Restless).
Answer—If one is young and spare or mature and engaged daily in real work or play, one may eat anything ordinarily wholesome. But if one is old or older, sedentary, perhaps a trifle overweight, an apple, orange, a few figs or other fruit is enough to eat at bedtime, that is, if one has already stowed away three meals. On the happy other hand, if one has worried through the day on two meals, why, then one may consume almost anything one can find around the place for the late night lunch. For good digestion is the ideal time to eat is bedtime, for sound sleep likewise.

Bunion

I see in your articles that it is possible to have a bunion removed. I always supposed it would be dangerous to have the great toe joint tampered with. Should I go to an ordinary surgeon or a foot specialist for removal of bunion?—(Mrs. B. D.).

Answer—Bunion can't be removed, save by amputating part of the foot, but an operation is the only cure for an established bunion. Go to any competent surgeon.

Coffee And Biscuits

Please tell me whether soda biscuits are fattening, and if drinking three cups of coffee a day will make me fat.—(Mrs. W. K. B.).

Answer—Soda biscuits are no more fattening than an equal amount of bread. Coffee has no nutritive value, though milk or cream and sugar are as fattening as anything you can eat.

Acid Foods

Kindly name fruits and vegetables that contain acid. Are the latter necessary for health?—(R. B.).

Answer—The fruit acids, as present in oranges, lemons, grapefruit, apples, peaches, apricots, plums, apricots, cherries, grapes, berries, etc., are oxidized and converted into alkaline salts in the blood and tissues. Foods which yield an acid ash and tend to render the tissues acid are eggs, whole grains, meats, peanuts, cranberries, prunes and plums. (Copyright National Newspaper Service.)

Resume of American and Foreign Newspaper Opinion

ELIMINATION OF CONSTANTINE

MAY SPEEL SALVATION.

While Greece shall be saved as a worthy ally, the nation is a matter of serious dispute among American editors. The elimination of Constantine, with the return, to complete power of former Premier Venizelos will be of material assistance, it is argued, but there are expressions of doubt whether the change came in time to allow saving much from the wreck. It will all depend on the attitude that is assumed by the Allies in the coming conference on Near Eastern affairs. If they renew their former support in united form of Venizelos, and allow Greece to retain the major portion of the territory allotted to her after the world war, and property can look forward to power and prosperity but if not she must become a very negligible factor in Balkan affairs.

The "going" of Constantine fails to clear the Greek skies, in the opinion of the New York Herald Tribune. It believes the plight of Greece due equally to "a party political quarrel" and to "interference by the allied powers" and holds that, if the revolution means there will be less interference and meddling, and that, hereafter, "Greece shall manage its own affairs it will mark the beginning of a new period." The Boston TRAVELER is inclined to feel that "amicable settlement of the problem in Asia Minor should be easier as the result of events in Athens," while the Salt Lake DESERET NEWS argues that "it seems doubtful that the people of Greece will be satisfied to accept Prince George as their king and the prospect just now is that his reign will be short." The "revolution, is one of distraction and despair," says the Baltimore SUN, while "all over Europe passions far more bitter than in Asia Minor are being kindled to destroy what is left of civilization. The latest move in Greece has stirred the lid of this Pandora's box. There lies the danger of the Greek revolution. The Cincinnati Times Star also recalls that the cruiser Lemos, on which the revolution was planned, is a former American warship while a former American woman, keeps her husband from accepting the throne pointing out that this does the old danger of a Greek king from the throne and an old Indian sweetheart decree that one of the royal line shall not ascend to the vacancy.

It is the feeling of the Chicago DAILY NEWS that "it will be well for the peace of the world if in the coming conference on near east affairs Greece shall be represented by Venizelos in person or by deputy instead of an agent of Constantine." The Norfolk LEDGER says that "Greece could not have been driven from the throne this time by a 'yellow' sentiment, by a people who wanted to get all they could, but who could not fight for it—either under Dictator Venizelos or King Constantine. Yet the ancestors of these people held the pass at Thermopylae." As this "is the second time" Constantine has abandoned his throne, the Dayton NEWS is convinced "he will not be able to stage a second comeback. Will a republic follow where a monarchy is tottering?" The failure of Constantine's policies, the Roanoke WORLD NEWS argues, means "it may be safely assumed that Greek policy in future will be more akin to the policy of Venizelos," which will mean "a stiffening of the Greek attitude toward the Turks." It was Venizelos alone, the Ann Arbor TIMES NEWS says, who in the past has shown the ability to put his nation on its feet and to guide it straight in the troubled councils of the Near East. Perhaps this time Greece has learned its lesson and will keep its strong man in Athens.

The fact that Rear Admiral Bristol has written in praise of the Turk is severely criticized by the Louisville POST holding that such action will make for international complications and arguing that "the less officers of the United States navy were and talk with the Turk the better for them and for the country they serve." But, after all, as the Lansing STATE JOURNAL points out, "with defeat abroad, revolt at home, the king gone, foes and friends opposed to its wishes Greece is a sorry spectacle at present," while the only way out, at Akron BEACON JOURNAL feels, will be if the new king "will profit by the mistakes of his deposed father, establish a republic, and be true to his country in too much territory in his conquests. In this event there may be less glory in Greece but a great deal more of comfortable peace."

On the other hand the Nashville DAILY NEWS believes that if George is "content with the humble of Kingship and leaves the direction of affairs to Venizelos and his successors he may get by but at best his position will get a rather contemptible unless he is impossible, he develops an ability for government that nothing in his career thus far has indicated."

The declaration of Secretary Hughes "that the United States unequivocally approves the proposals of the Allies to insure the freedom of the Dardanelles and the protection of racial and religious minorities" is criticized by the Washington STAR because "this government cannot feel that it is interested in the matter even though it takes up participation in negotiations and in any conference that may be held." There is also special interest, the St. Louis GLOBE DEMOCRAT thinks, "in the watch on the Dardanelles" maintained by the British because "the little army at Chanak are the champions of Christendom against Turkish misgovernment and terrorism." But "if Greece is sensible," the Mobile REGISTER argues, the situation will work itself out although the LINCOLN STAR feels that "Greece is doomed to remain a second or third rate power for many years to come." The eventual supremacy of Venizelos cannot be prevented, the Birmingham NEWS thinks, as "he is a big man. It is a vast pity that he is not a younger man—twenty years younger—fit material to enjoy at least two terms in the Greek Senate that would be the making." While the former Premier could have made a great Greece after the treaty of Sevres was signed the Denver ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS suggests that "it may be too late" for that now, but the Lynchburg NEWS holds that "if to Venizelos, come all saving service Greece, above any other, is best equipped to render it."

There is hope in the fact, as the New York HERALD puts it, that the Greek people "themselves thoroughly understand that their present plight is of their own making," and the "world will be glad to find in King George a ruler who will prove the savior of Greece," which, also, is the opinion of the Springfield UNION, which argues that if a "stable government" is evolved, "Greece may come back as other nations have come back from severe defeats and help to change a situation which implies a new era for the Turks, and a provocation for a future war." The Boston TRANSCRIPT on its part doubts whether "without some sort of intervention on the part of Great Britain Greece can save much from the wreckage of her venture in Pan-Hellenism." The New York WORLD, however, argues that "if the Greeks have the courage to go on fighting the German-Polish offer to Kemal goes into the discard," and the Allies "once again discover the weakness of trying to run the world by degrees from Paris and London." Which leads the Richmond NEWS LEADER to recall that "the downfall of the Danian rule in Greece is the darkest but not the only chapter in the tragic experiment of plunging foreign kings in the Balkan countries. The experiment began with Greece in 1832 and ended only with Albania in 1913. European Chancellors argued that those who by birth and observation knew the business of being Kings were best qualified to gain the respect of the Balkan peoples. Actually the schemers of the European plot believed they would be able to pull the strings on these marionette monarchs and to increase their spheres of influence. Neither Greece, Rumania or Bulgaria had been the case, but unfortunately the affairs of the nations necessarily fell into the hands of the politicians—a class of men peculiarly unqualified to meet great crises when unselfish judgment, magnanimity, broad views and the far look are essential.

There are politicians today of ability and vision who feel their public responsibility and regard themselves as stewards of the interests of the public; but there are many more who are subtle, conscienceless schemers, always plotting for advantage, ever maneuvering for public favor that they may continue in office, and with little care for the larger welfare of mankind. A keen observer has said "politics ruins character." Public life has always tended to lead men to sacrifice conviction for popularity, and to make them prejudiced partisans rather than enlightened statesmen. Anybody who reads Thucydides will note how, even in the days of the Greek cities of the fifth century B. C., the politicians were scrambling for office, how the party leaders were slandering one another, and struggling to get hold of "the latch of legislation" for their own advantage, how they spent their time in cunning and bickering, and how public interests were so neglected that insecurity and ruin stalked in the streets. We have the same sort of thing with us today—men who are dominated by party affiliations, national prejudices, personal ambitions, narrow policies, and an utter lack of grasp of the terrible situation into which the world has come. Our last Congress was a lamentable spectacle of how little the average American politician can get away from old ideas, old suspicions, old jealousies, old party traditions, and rise to breathe the air of a new day. There was no apparent realization of our obligations to the rest of the world, or of the absurdity of our position that our destiny is not inextricably joined to that of Europe. There was not only a lack of humanity in our attitude but also of decent political shrewdness. A parliamentary body could scarcely have made more blunders, shown less commonsense, exhibited less moral conviction, or failed more fully to solve the tremendous problems of the times than has the Congress of the United States in all its sessions since the Armistice was signed. If our Congressmen and Senators had risen in intellectual and moral power to the demand of the hour and had acted as statesmen rather than quarreling politicians, the ruin of the world would now have been well on the way to recovery.

But American politicians have not been the only blind and selfish leaders. Europe too has been in the hands of partisans, animated by prejudices and considering themselves the custodians of special national interests rather than as men appointed to rebuild a ruined world. They have shown the competitive, nationalistic spirit rather than the cooperative internationalistic spirit. They have been more concerned in the Scandinavian breaking down the barriers between the nations. They first created an unrighteous peace, and belied the principles on which the armistice was signed. They then set up a machine, the Supreme Council of the premiers, which largely tied the hands of the League of Nations. They then began to dispute among themselves upon almost everything which looked toward the rebuilding of Europe, figuring always for national advantage. The story of Italian, Greek and French statesmanship for the period following the war will make a sorry chapter in the future history of the world, as will that of the United States.

WOULD SPEAK FOR HIMSELF.

Paris—"Action is the principle, action is the means, action is the end" was M. Clemenceau in the preface to his book, "The Great Peace." These words explain his personality and character according to M. Robert de Jouvenel, who tells us further in "L'OEUVRE": "Clemenceau seems to be getting tired of only being represented publicly by M. Tardieu and is going to return to the scene of action. First of all he is going to America where he will tell the Americans that it was a mistake that the Versailles Treaty did not settle the question of debts between the Allies and that it is very necessary to put order in these old accounts."

"The Americans will answer that he should have spoken about that at the time of the Versailles negotiations. 'You are perhaps right,' M. Clemenceau will answer. 'But at that time, I completely forgot. I had so many other things to think of.'"

"We might compare this plan of M. Clemenceau with a gentleman who, having forgotten his hat at a friend's house, goes and asks for it after four years. He would probably be told: 'We kept your hat for some time and you did not come for it so we gave it to a wounded soldier.'"

"For this is really what has happened and the money owed by the allies is to be used as a bonus for old soldiers."

"M. Clemenceau stated that he had made no plans, that he had no need of documents, and that he would accept nobody's mission."

"We recognize here the 'empiric' method, claimed formerly by this disciple of opportunism and individualism."

"We must confess that M. Clemenceau's plan is not without a certain poetic beauty. It is no ordinary thing for an octogenarian to defy death in order to make good his mistakes. But did anybody ever imagine that M. Clemenceau would really stay long on the Venetian coast? Only those who did not know him and had not read his works could have thought so. He expresses his idea of the world in the following manner: 'Our dark road is lighted by the need of action, of life for action. It is this that helps us, the heart full of ardor, to realize the future. It is this that moves us to the future of doing; it is this that leads us nobly to a quiet peace, in victory or defeat, with no regret for the life lived—We must act. Action is the principle, the means and the end.'"

"These words show us Clemenceau as he is, one of those astonishing persons, the most charming and the most hateful of his time, who cares nothing for cheers or jeers, for whom the result is nothing compared to the spectacle of his own activity, for whom, in short, the joy of fighting is greater than victory or defeat."

"It was certainly not likely that such a man would remain for long in his little house at Jard."

"Will his trip do good or harm to the national cause? No one can say and he has not even asked himself this question."

"I have something to say," he said. "The rest matters little!"

Our Blundering Politicians

By Dr. Samuel Plantz

The world is in a bad way. Some of us thought when the armistice was signed on the basis of Wilson's fourteen points, fine statements of great principles and of justice, that the dawn of a brighter day had come. We felt that we had learned a lesson from the awful carnage of war which we would remember for decades, and that the nations would join hands to rebuild the world. If the people had their way this world would have been the case, but unfortunately the affairs of the nations necessarily fell into the hands of the politicians—a class of men peculiarly unqualified to meet great crises when unselfish judgment, magnanimity, broad views and the far look are essential.

There are politicians today of ability and vision who feel their public responsibility and regard themselves as stewards of the interests of the public; but there are many more who are subtle, conscienceless schemers, always plotting for advantage, ever maneuvering for public favor that they may continue in office, and with little care for the larger welfare of mankind. They then began to dispute among themselves upon almost everything which looked toward the rebuilding of Europe, figuring always for national advantage. The story of Italian, Greek and French statesmanship for the period following the war will make a sorry chapter in the future history of the world, as will that of the United States.

But American politicians have not been the only blind and selfish leaders. Europe too has been in the hands of partisans, animated by prejudices and considering themselves the custodians of special national interests rather than as men appointed to rebuild a ruined world. They have shown the competitive, nationalistic spirit rather than the cooperative internationalistic spirit. They have been more concerned in the Scandinavian breaking down the barriers between the nations. They first created an unrighteous peace, and belied the principles on which the armistice was signed. They then set up a machine, the Supreme Council of the premiers, which largely tied the hands of the League of Nations. They then began to dispute among themselves upon almost everything which looked toward the rebuilding of Europe, figuring always for national advantage. The story of Italian, Greek and French statesmanship for the period following the war will make a sorry chapter in the future history of the world, as will that of the United States.

NOW DO MY WORK WITH EASE

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored My Health

Hornell, N.Y. "I was in bad health but there didn't seem to be any one thing the matter with me. I was tired out all over and it was an effort for me to move. I was irritable and could not sleep nights and had trouble with my bowels and at my periods. It seemed that nearly every one around me knew of your medicine and wanted me to try it, so at last I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine and improved every day. I do all my own work now except the washing and do it with ease. I can accomplish as much in a day now as it would have taken me a week to do last winter and I try to get every one I know to take your medicine to build them up. You are welcome to use this letter as a testimonial if you like."—Mrs. CHAS. BAKER, 21 Spencer Ave., Hornell, N.Y.

In almost every neighborhood there are women who know of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They know because they have taken it and have been helped. Why don't you give it a trial?

Elderly Couple Find New Vigor Tanlac Again Proves It's Merit

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Davis, highly esteemed residents of Lansdowne, Md., who attribute their present good health to the use of Tanlac.

That Tanlac is the ideal medicine for elderly persons has been proven in thousands of cases, but it is doubtful if any case is as interesting as that of Mr. and Mrs. A. Davis, well known and highly respected residents of Lansdowne, Md.

"I had pneumonia last spring, and it left me terribly weak," said Mrs. Davis. "My stomach was upset. I scarcely ate a thing and there was always a terrible pain my back. But Tanlac gave me a splendid appetite, my nerves are steady and I have regained my strength so I feel twenty years younger."

"I spent hundreds of dollars trying to get well," said Mr. Davis, "but nothing gave me the relief I wanted until I took Tanlac. I had stomach trouble so bad I could hardly eat a thing, and even had to go on a soft boiled egg diet. I was so racked with pain and so weak and nervous that once I actually fell and broke my nose."

"But since taking Tanlac I now enjoy perfect health, have a fine appetite and my nerves are steady as a rock."

NOTE—The International Proprietaries Co., distributors of Tanlac, have on file in their offices at Atlanta, Georgia, over fifty thousand signed statements from representative men and women from every State in the Union and every Province in Canada. ## GRIDDERS MIX IN 2 GAMES THIS WEEK

Play Appleton Old Timers On Saturday And Manitowoc On Sunday

Kaukauna—Two good battles are promised on Saturday and Sunday for the local American legion football team. A benefit game for Appleton and Kaukauna boy scouts will be played at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon on Lawrence field between the amateur state champs and eleven old timers who were famous on the grid in their day.

It is not known just what lineup will face this aggregation but it is certain there must be enough of the team in shape to play Manitowoc Sunday afternoon on the local ball park.

Manitowoc is said to have a good team having held the Luauermans Twins a Marinette Menominee squad to a 15 to 0 score.

Although the legion won a hard fought game last week it was proved that there are teams in the state at most as good and the possibility looms that some team will be scheduled this fall that will beat the home squad for the first time. To the Washington A. C. goes the distinction of being the first team to score on the legion in straight football. The two eleven's which scored last season did so on long runs following intercepted passes.

Manager Edward Rennieke intimated Tuesday that before the season's over football fans will be witnessing battles with some stiff and noted teams. Now that Kaukauna has a record to uphold and is well known in football it is not difficult to secure meetings with the best that can be found.

BIG ENROLMENT IN HOBO COLLEGE

Chicago Institution Offers Place Of Refuge For Homeless Wanderers

Special to Post-Crescent
Chicago—Chicago's Hobo College is just opening its fall term.

And judging from the hundreds of down and outers, panhandlers, jobless men and others out of luck who are pouring in from all parts of America this year's enrollment will set new records.

As an institution of learning for the man down and out, where he not only can study but be warm all winter, it is a place where the problems of the homeless are being solved.

College was established 20 years ago by James Eades Howe, "millionaire hobo." Since then it has become a recognized institution in Chicago.

Artists, clerics, sociologists and even society leaders have from time to time taken part in its work.

Howe, son of wealthy parents, early became interested in humanitarian work. In his youth, he learned the tramp's psychology through personal contact with them. At Harvard and Oxford he studied with a view to bettering humanity.

The hobo, and through him the world, can be improved by education. Howe holds. The money was inherited, therefore, went to founding the Hobo College. Counterpart of it have been founded in many other cities. 'Students' of the college attend during the winter months. In the summer they disperse to the harvest fields, to other migratory seasonal occupations, or to the hobo life. Three nights a week will be given to instruction this winter. Industrial law, economics and health are the courses offered, each handled by competent instructors. There is also a box at favorite operatic or theatrical attractions—also, free meals certain evenings. These meals can always be counted upon to swell attendance at the classes. The once successful man, the man highly educated who cannot seem to find his niche, the boy who never had a chance and the vagrant from choice, all are enrolled at the college. Some find mental stimulus and a means of becoming useful citizens.

again, others find in the institution its comforts, free from "flop-house" atmosphere. Its doors are always open, its warmth continuous, its piano, is free to all and there is always a plentiful supply of books and magazines.

A Master Stroke In Fiction---

The Appleton Post-Crescent, starting tomorrow, will print ROBERT W. CHAMBERS' latest novel, "THE FLAMING JEWEL," in serial form. Since the time when "The Common Law" established the Cosmopolitan magazine, Robert W. Chambers has been recognized as one of the greatest writers in the world. "The Flaming Jewel" equals "The Common Law" in every respect. It is colored with that warmth of romantic sympathy which has made Chambers' stories so successful in the past and is filled with an unusual amount of dramatic action and surprises.

This is a story which is bound to interest every reader of The Post-Crescent. It is a flaming romance of the north woods, built around a pretty girl who battles a band of ruffians seeking lost crown jewels.

The First Installment of the "Flaming Jewel" Will be Printed in the Post-Crescent Thursday, October 12th

MOTOR OPERATION PUZZLES OWNERS

Tourists Still Wonder What Ailed Their Machines in High Altitudes

Motorists who have returned from a summer touring trip to the mountains are still wondering over the queer performance of their cars. The boat was running well as the motor party left home. But somehow she lost pep when touring the heights. The engine overheated more easily and the car was not so good on hill work.

On returning home, however, the old pep came back. The engine performed as well as ever and the car climbed the hills with ease.

The answer to this mystery is altitude. The higher the car climbs the rarer is the atmosphere and the more difficult becomes the engine's ability to perform.

AIR PRESSURE
As the car goes higher, the pressure of air is reduced. Normal air pressure at sea level is 15 pounds to the square inch. But at Denver, for example, which is a mile above sea level, the air pressure is only 12 pounds.

This reduction in air pressure has a material effect on the power produced by the gasoline engine. The compression of the engine is reduced, and this directly affects the power behind the piston stroke.

The reduced weight of the air also affects the combustion in the cylinders. Besides lower compression, therefore, there is also a reduction in the amount of air needed for complete combustion of the fuel. This means that the supply of fuel must be cut down proportionately to maintain proper combustion in the engine. All this means less power.

THE REMEDY
To make up for this loss in power it is best to open up the air intake, rather than cut down on the needle valve of the carburetor.

At high altitudes, the boiling point of water falls off. Which means there is greater danger of overheating the engine at such heights. Therefore, it is well to replenish the water more often than at lower levels.

UNCLE SAM HAS BEST PAPER MILL IN WORLD

Washington—The paper mill at the bureau of standards is one of the show places of Washington. Uncle Sam makes no secret of any of his equipment for the making of paper, and anyone who is interested is welcome to visit and inspect the plant and to use the formulas on file.

The experts at the bureau of standards are constantly working on methods to improve the quality of paper manufactured and to find new raw material from which to make paper. Improvements in machinery are tried out at this plant, and changes in equipment are being continuously made to perfect the methods in use.

The miniature paper mill probably is the best of its kind in the world. It is sufficiently large to demonstrate all features of paper making, and the equipment is capable of making paper of every grade known to the trade.

LITTLE GOLD REMAINS IN CIRCULATION HERE

An occasional $10 or $20 gold piece gets into circulation among local merchants but does not get far before someone pockets it as a curiosity. Very little gold has been in circulation in Appleton since before the war. Practically all of that circulated during the last few months was left here by California tourists who prefer it to silver or paper currency and usually have a supply.

BISHOP WELLER NEAR NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Bishop Weller of the Fond du Lac diocese, Episcopal church, is reported in danger of a nervous breakdown. The bishop has been ordered to cancel all engagements for a week and take a complete rest. He just returned from a general conference of the Episcopal church in which he took an active part, and this work in addition to the strain of his usual duties has proved too much for him. He spoke in Appleton last week at the diocesan meeting of the Woman's missionary societies.

ASK GRADS TO PLEDGE A DIME A DAY FOR BELOIT

Beloit college still lacks $300,000 of its goal in the million dollar endowment drive that will close at 9 o'clock to bring it to a successful completion. Each graduate of that institution is asked to give a dime a day for five years. The campaign for funds cannot run beyond the current year under conditions set by the trustees of the national educational fund. "Every alumnus and alumna," said President Brannon, "I think will be willing to let the college ride a mile a day in his or her automobile. It costs 10 cents a mile to operate an automobile. And if every graduate would pledge this small sum a day, the goal would be passed."

RED CROSS SECRETARIES TO MEET IN FOND DU LAC

Miss Frances Brayton of Appleton, field representative of the central division of the Red Cross, was in Fond du Lac last week making preliminary arrangements for holding a regional conference of Red Cross secretaries in that city on Nov. 1 or 2.

Final arrangements will be made at a meeting of the Fond du Lac chapter on Oct. 17. The conference will last one day and will be attended by Red Cross secretaries from the eastern half of Wisconsin. Several prominent speakers will deliver addresses.

VETERAN RAILROAD MAN WILL LIVE IN CHICAGO

Thomas Gray of Kaukauna, one of the oldest railway engineers in the state, who has many friends in Appleton, has moved to Chicago to pass his declining years with his sons.

He was one of the first men to run an engine over the old Lake Shore & Western road which 25 years ago was purchased by the Northwestern Railway Co. and is now known as the Ashland division.

Several years ago he was pensioned after 50 years of continuous service, and it is said during that time he never had an accident.

The Service Rendered by Efficiency in Gas- oline Production

THE man who fills his tank at a Service Station, or feeds his tractor from a tank wagon, may not realize it but sheer efficiency on the part of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is to a large degree the reason why the gasoline is there when he wants it.

Oil News says: "During the winter 1921-1922 the majority of the refineries in the Mid-Continent field were idle. This was due largely to the fact that they could not refine and sell at a profit. They were in a way inefficient. Many could not operate. Others that might have operated could not get the crude. The large plants could and did finance themselves and sold some of their output as they made it at a profit."

Keen efficiency—in small, as well as in big things, has enabled the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to refine and sell petroleum products at a fair profit, under the most competitive of business conditions.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has 1600 competitors in the Middle West.

Standard Oil Company (Indiana) efficiency runs through every operation. It governs the appointment of executives. It selects oil men of long training and experience who know when and what type of crude to buy. It directs the style of machinery, the kind of stills to be used. It determines the various products to be refined from the crude so that there may be no waste of oil, effort, time or overhead.

This efficiency, and the confidence which the public places in it, enables the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to maintain its position as the leader in the industry. It enables the management to plan for the future with confidence, and to keep its refineries going during periods of low consumption that it may be in position to meet adequately the unusual demands during periods of greater consumption.

It is this efficiency which has spotted the country with bulk and service stations and caused more than 6600 motor tank wagons to traverse the streets and highways supplying the people everywhere with first quality petroleum products at prices which are fair.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) submits that such efficient management is the essential basis of the valuable service it renders.

MANITOWOC KICKS ON MAIL SERVICE

Northwestern Probably Will Not Restore Southbound Passenger Train

The city of Manitowoc is preparing to file a protest against orders of the United States postal department curtailing west and north mail facilities of that city and neighboring villages to one mail a day. Under the order, mail service will be provided west to Appleton on only one train daily, train No. 153 on the Northwestern road. Withdrawal of train service is given as the reason for the order.

Service formerly provided by train No. 131 from Manitowoc to Appleton is discontinued west and north of South Kaukauna. The order also states that two trains on the Green Bay short line, No. 123 and 124, are permanently discontinued and mail service is annulled. Railroad officials have, however, given assurance that the trains will be restored, and it is believed that this part of the order will be withdrawn as soon as the government learns of the action of the road.

The order in any event will cripple that city, since no mail can be dispatched to Appleton direct except on the train leaving Manitowoc at 4:10 in the afternoon.

Northwestern train No. 205, southbound, probably will not be restored, according to Maj. E. T. Markie, secretary of the Fond du Lac Association of Commerce, who has interviewed railroad officials on the subject. The train was taken off during the shop strike emergency and because of coal shortage.

It is understood, however, that the officials favor restoring No. 210, northbound, as there is a gap in north-bound trains now operating.

BADGER DAIRYMEN MEET IN MADISON

First Dairy Feeding Day In America Will Be Held This Month

The first Dairy Feeding day ever staged in America will be held in Madison on October 26, when the dairymen of Wisconsin meet to plan their winter feeding operations.

Back of the occasion is the determined effort of the dairymen of the state to make their winter employment profitable. They have adopted as the slogan for the coming season, "Feed Your Cows for Profit."

The conference will be attended by Wisconsin's foremost dairymen, officials of state and county breed associations, county agents, cow testers, feed dealers and others prominently identified with the dairy industry.

The meeting will be the celebration of the fifty-first birthday of that pioneer organization, the Wisconsin Dairymen's association. The features of the program will be presented by some of the most noted leaders in the dairy world. They will announce plans looking forward to the more efficient feeding of Wisconsin's dairy herds and the more economical purchase of feeding stuffs.

A committee representing the Wisconsin Dairymen's association, Wisconsin live stock breeders associations, farmers institutes, Wisconsin cow testing associations, the department of agriculture and the college of agriculture is arranging for the event.

G. C. Humphrey of the animal husbandry staff of the university is the president of the Dairymen's association and Paul Burchard of Jefferson county is the secretary.

TWO APPLETON FAMILIES MOVING TO MILWAUKEE

Moving household goods by motor-truck is now quite the popular thing with people who have occasion to transfer their goods from one city to another as it saves crating and drayage.

Within the last week Harry H. Long Transfer Co. has made two trips to Milwaukee for W. T. Lazar and William Miller who have taken up their residence in that city, one to Rhineland for a newly married couple, and one to Chicago for Thomas Gray, a former railway engineer of Kaukauna. On the return trip from Chicago the motortruck was loaded with the household goods of H. O'Hier of Racine, who has returned to Appleton to reside.

You can't make FINE CIGARS unless you command a supply of FINE TOBACCOS

All the filler tobaccos used in the Harvester cigar come from Cuba, whose sun and soil, rains and mists produce the aromatic flavors without which no cigar can be called "fine".

All the wrappers used in Harvester come from a little stretch of land along the Connecticut River. There, under acres of cloth, is grown a quality of "shade" wrapper leaf the like of which the tobacco world never saw until a few years ago.

To select skillfully from the crops offered annually in these two great markets, calls for judgment of a rare order and for experience that can't be deceived. So far, so good.

But to procure the lots of tobacco, after you have selected them bale by bale, calls for buying power, pure and simple. That means ability to buy in large volume, backed by the cash in hand.

The outstanding reason why Harvester cigar has built such an impressive success in so few years is — tobacco.

Its makers—the Consolidated Cigar Corporation—have every advantage of buying experience and buying power. They command the best the crops yield. Second place is not for them.

Harvester is a fine cigar because it is made of fine tobaccos.

It's a cigar, men—a real one

I SPIED TODAY

Post-Crescent readers are catching the idea of the "I Spied Today" section. As has been stated several times this section is for reporting unusual happenings which escape attention of reporters on this newspaper. Staff stories of this type are much preferred to bright sayings of children, jokes and anecdotes. The stories should be timely, that is, they are reports of events of the day on which they are written. Those persons who sent contributions to the I Spied Editor and failed to find them in the paper should try again. The items were not printed because they were not what was wanted. Follow instructions carefully read the stories that are printed and write items of a similar nature.

THEY WON'T DO IT AGAIN
This noon as I was walking home along the Railroad Track a freight came along.
It was going quite slow and a couple of small boys thought they would take a ride. They got on and all went well till they got to College ave.
The flagman saw them and told them to get off. He took one by each hand and took them in his hands. I don't know what he told them but when they came out they looked pretty scared.

MUST HAVE BEEN DREAMING
An amusing incident which might have been a serious accident occurred when a street sweeper, after depositing his load of refuse on a garden, wheeled his cart on to the drive way just as the owner of an auto was backing his car out of the garage.
The cart was tossed to one side but the old man attracted by the frantic yell of the owner of the car managed to step aside in time to escape injury.

A BLOWOUT
Last night as I passed the Post-Crescent building I saw a young boy coming down the alley going for his bicycle. When he was about to get on his bicycle he noticed he had a flat tire. He turned around and saw all the newsboys grinning at him. He didn't know how long to find the guilty one and believe me he took all the fun out of it for him.

RAILROAD EFFICIENCY
I was riding a bicycle west on College-ave about 3 P. M. and a small boy was coming east on a bicycle on the sidewalk at the Cherry street crossing. With no other traffic in sight the watchman went to the middle of the street and with a stop sign and whistle cleared the right of way for a hand car.

NEEW USE FOR CAR
While waiting in the country, we saw a farmer bringing home his cows with an automobile. The lane down which they were being driven was some distance from the road, so I couldn't tell whether it was a Ford or a Packard, but I do know that whatever kind of car it was, he was surely making good use of it.

The sight was one which would have made any grandfather's grasp with astonishment of seeing an automobile take the place of good old Shep.

NEAR JOB FOR CORONER
I saw something Sunday that made my hair stand on end. A party of nutters were poaching on a farm in Grand Chute, when a boy who lived on the place came out and opened fire on them with a 22 calibre rifle. He aimed deliberately at the nutters and shot three times before the men scampered away.

RELICS OF RECKLESS DRIVING LINE ROADS
Drivers along the Appleton-Oshkosh rd. Sunday seemed to have been in an awful hurry. All the cars with an automobile were driving. E. L. Williams, city scribe, who likes to amble along at a nice even gait could not help noticing two cars in the ditch and three dogs that had been run over on the road. Both cars lay in the same position, and the front wheels of one of them were pushed back to the middle of the car.

A REAL MARY PICKFORD
Saturday afternoon I was going to the football game, when I noticed across the road another girl, who evidently was bound for the same place.
Behind her were about fifteen Lawrence fellows also going to the game. The boys were remarking about her beautiful hair and her Mary Pickford curls. She was insulted in a few places, then the wind started to blow wildly. She became very embarrassed when her short skirt started to blow.
In her effort to hold her skirt down she forgot about her hair blowing. The breeze swept through and finally succeeded in detaching one by one the beautiful curls, and hurling them to the ground.

APPEARANCES LIED
He was a white curly haired puddle dog with a wide blue bow tied about his neck and a seemingly most amiable demeanor. A car thinking him to be the regular lap dog type sniffed him suspiciously and then pushed him over.
Poor cur. He limped away a few minutes later, minus much hair and a small piece of tail.

LIZZIE NEEDED DOCTOR
I noticed a rather sad-looking ramshackle Ford parked in front of the Library, with this sign on it: "Whooop (sigh) Suppose it was alright otherwise."

THIS AIN'T NO CITY
The interurban car from Neenah had been standing near the Downer store for about five minutes when three women came along Oneida st. from Lawrence st. in a new Ford coupe. They evidently had heard that automobiles should not pass stopping street cars, and stopped their Ford in front of Ryan's Art Store. Almost immediately twelve cars were held up behind the coupe. The women sat calmly until they heard the honking behind them. Immediately they started their automobile passed the street car nervously, looked guiltily at the policeman, and drove on.

NOT SO FUNNY
The "busses" of the college students have been creating much excitement lately. Just as the students were coming from the chapel a funeral procession passed down College ave. The procession was followed by one of these so-called busses driven by a grinning student, while in the back of the "car" sat two more young men trying hard to be sober and dignified. They evidently have a highly developed sense of humor.

SHE STOPPED IT
While I was walking along College ave. I saw a woman who had bought a new alarm clock, and was carrying it under her arm. Suddenly it started to ring violently and the embarrassed woman succeeded in stopping it, amid the smiles of the onlookers.

THEN SHE BLUSHED
As I was sitting in our car waiting for my friend to finish her shopping I noticed a stunning young girl who jumped into the "Chummy roadster" which was parked next to me.
Immediately she became absorbed in a book so did not notice the sporty looking chap who came out of the cigar store—nor did she see the look of surprise and amusement on his face as he came up to her and said "Like to take a spin?"
She threw her head haughtily to one side but that did not prevent this stranger from jumping into the car and starting the engine.
"Well I like that," she heard a familiar voice calling about four cars away. She looked up and saw her chum about to drive away without her.
"Gee! I didn't know there was another car like Helen's!"

FAST ON HIS FEET
As I was walking down State street at noon a young man passed me, carrying a cane and walking very rapidly. He wore dark glasses. However, the thing that impressed me most was his rapid gait in walking. Several yards in front of me was an old man, walking feebly along. I noticed that the young man with the dark glasses walked directly behind the old man. I watched to see him pass but instead he walked right into the old man shoving him violently against a nearby tree. The young man with the cane evidently was dumb but made the best time walking of any blind man I ever saw.

Why You Need a Tonic in the Fall
Take Father John's Medicine

During the summer months many people do not eat the energy-building foods which their system requires, and with the increase of activities in the Fall they are using up more tissue than the food which they eat replaces, so that they quickly get thin and run down and find that they get tired easily or catch cold frequently. This means that they must have a food medicine to rebuild their exhausted strength and energy.
The logical food tonic for just this condition is Father John's Medicine which is based upon a number of food elements which have been accepted by doctors for many years as those best suited to rebuilding strength and health. These food elements in Father John's Medicine are so prepared that the system quickly takes them up and turns them into new tissue, new energy, flesh and strength. That is why Father John's Medicine is known as the greatest body builder and has had a history of more than sixty seven years success in the treatment of colds, coughs and similar illness. It is guaranteed free from alcohol or dangerous drugs in any form.

ROTARY PLEDGES ITS AID TO YOUNG MEN OF APPLETON

"Big Brother" Movement Expected To Be Outgrowth Of Club's Interest

Teachers of Appleton high school, members of the boards of education, the mayor and city council and representatives of Appleton Women's club, were guests of the club at a dinner in the Venetian room of the Sherman house Monday evening. Following the dinner Louis Binini, chairman of the boys' work committee of the club, outlined plans for cooperation with teachers in schools. The biggest immediate work of the committee is to make the return of the present sophomore class of the high school 100 per cent next fall. An address by the Rev. Paul O. Keicher of All Saints church, followed by one by Lee C. Rasey, principal of the high school, is the foundation for what probably will develop into "Big Brother" movement or its equivalent in Appleton.

In outlining the plan of International Rotary as it relates to boys' work, Mr. Binini said the club aims to promote acquaintance and interest among all those who are attempting to solve educational problems and that the local club proposes to conduct a back to school campaign for boys in the sophomore class of Appleton High school because it is largely at that age that boys decide to go to work. Rotary proposed that Appleton Women's club conduct a similar campaign among the girls of that class.

WILL HELP BOYS
He explained that the boys' work committee will get the names of all the boys in the class and write each a letter, pointing out the advantages of further education. A post card will be enclosed on which the boy is asked to tell whether he is going back to school and if not, why not. The boys who do not plan to return will be interviewed by members of Rotary who will do everything in their power to make it possible for the boy to go back with other members of his class.

The plan, which received the hearty endorsement of the whole club and the teachers, goes further in its efforts with young people. The committee will encourage the mayor and city council to make adequate provision for play grounds, gymnasiums, another swimming pool and an athletic field. Mr. Binini was emphatic about the need for a city athletic field probably in the new Erb park, where the high school teams would not be dependent for practice on the use of the Lawrence field. The plan also urges the establishment of dental and optical clinics and the encouragement of all boys' and girls' work agencies.

NEED CAREFUL TRAINING
Father Keicher, who has done a great deal of work in the courts of New York and Washington, D. C. with young people, gave an inspiring talk on the moral and social advantage of education drawing freely from his wide experience with delinquent boys and girls in the cities. He showed from scripture that God intended that boys and girls increase in wisdom and pointed to the life of the Hebrew boy of Christ's time, who was carefully taught through early life and not given his majority until he was 30.

"In my work in the court, in the jail, in the work house, in the house of correction and even in the death house," said Father Keicher, "it is the same old story, over and over again. Disinterest in school, lack of opportunity, and a desire for money and a good time result in the boy leaving school and going to work to do hard work for small wages because he has no education. He has an insatiable desire for recreation but does not know how to play, so he turns to the pool hall and the public dance hall where, without proper supervision he usually ends in the police court, becomes a repeater, serves a sentence and becomes a hardened criminal."

NEED RECREATION
The speaker emphasized the need for recreation, which he said was absolutely essential. He brought out that if the young people are not given proper recreation they will get it elsewhere, for they will find it. He urged that the Rotary club take on the Big Brother idea, which is developing in all the big cities, where by a man in business takes an interest in some one boy and actually becomes his friend, confidant and helper. He urged the men to offer their services in this capacity.

In his speech, following Rev. Keicher's, Mr. Rasey heartily endorsed the Big Brother idea, saying that he could think of at least a dozen boys, who would be benefited by contact with an older man. He thanked the club for the teachers for its interest in educational work and assured the members that their interest combined with that of the teachers would do big things in the way of making the school attractive to the students. To the personal efforts and interest of all the high school teachers Mr. Rasey accredited the great increase in attendance at Appleton high school. He said that practically the entire freshman class of last year is now the sophomore class.

H. P. Buck made an announcement concerning the Appleton-Kaukauna football game for the benefit of the boy Scouts, urging the members of the club to make the attendance at the game large. He introduced in humorous manner the members of the Appleton team who are members of Rotary.

DRIVERS MUST USE EXTRA PRECAUTION

Employees of the street department started work Tuesday in tearing up the dilapidated creosote block pavement at the foot of Pearl-st. hill between the buildings of the Fox River Paper company. This will be replaced with a pavement of tar and gravel. One side of the street will be paved at a time in order not to hold up traffic. This makes the passageway unusually narrow, and motorists will have to use caution in driving through. If caution is not used, the street commissioner threatens to close up the street entirely, making it necessary for vehicles to cross on the John-st. bridge.

SENIORS WILL SEE FIRE ENGINE TEST

Members of the senior class of Appleton high school will be dismissed after the second period on Thursday morning to witness the work of the Appleton fire department, an exhibition of which has been planned for their benefit. A run will be made at 9:45 Thursday morning to water works hill, where the apparatus will be demonstrated and explained to the students.
The demonstration has been arranged through the efforts of Chief George P. McGilgan, who will give a short address. The demonstration is for the entire senior class, most of which is the classes in "Problems of Democracy."

Through a Sieve Woven Finer Than Silk

Portland cement, to meet the exacting specifications of leading engineering societies and the United States Government, must be ground so fine that at least 78 per cent will pass a sieve having 200 wires per linear inch. A silk handkerchief has but 110 threads per inch—an excellent quality of silk dress goods 187 threads.

The watch in your pocket hardly calls for a more complicated and carefully adjusted process of manufacture than the making of cement.

Grinding is only one of the many operations required to make it. Yet in grinding alone, see what is required:

The rocks from the quarry, often as big as a piano and heavier, go first into a gigantic "coffee mill." It bites at these huge chunks, chips them, and finally crushes them—to pieces six inches or so in diameter.

Two finer mills follow, one after the other, reducing the stones to the size of coarse sand. After this, they must be ground in a great revolving cylinder half filled with steel balls, until every cubic foot of the rock has been reduced to 14 billion pieces—until 85 per cent of them will shake through a sieve that will actually hold water, as a sieve with 40,000 holes to the square inch.

And all of this is less than half the necessary grinding. The coal must be ground. For the object of all this fine grinding of the raw materials is only that it may be fused into crystalline clinkers. And to fuse it requires pulverized coal—or its equivalent. Most plants use pulverized coal.

The coal must be ground as fine as the raw stone. Eighty-five per cent of it or thereabouts must go through the sieve that holds water. And that often means two grinding operations.

There is still the clinker to be ground. It is glass-hard to begin with. It must be ground first to the fineness of sand, and then ground and reground in another cylinder of steel balls—until at least 78 per cent of it will go through the sieve woven finer than silk.

Huge boulders to an impalpable dust. Common coal to an impalpable dust, and finally, after the burning, glass-hard clinker to an impalpable dust. That is the making of cement. And eight heavy grinding operations are required in the process.

Grinding is only one of the lesser heat and power consuming operations in cement manufacture.

The Criterion of Worth In Merchandising

It isn't the merchant who handles the article—it isn't the store expert who selects the article—it isn't the chance admirer of the article—it is the consumer or purchaser of the article who establishes the criterion of worth, style and service.

The consumer is the reason for the store, the expert, the article. To study, anticipate, fulfill his need, and desires makes the successful merchant.

To this we attribute our success—along this road we shall continue to travel.
